HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, May 17, 1911.

EVENING SESSION.

The House met at 7.30 o'clock P. M.

The Speaker (JOHN F. COX) in the Chair.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT asked for unanimous consent to call up House Bill No. 858, from page 63 to-day's calendar, bills on third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 858 (Senate Bill No. 334), entitled:

An act establishing the office of State Fire Marshal defining his powers and duties providing for his compensation and the maintenance of his office giving courts the power to punish witnesses for contempt of his authority and to review his orders and making it the duty of officers of public instruction and persons in charge of public or private schools to instruct children as to the dangers of fire and the prevention of fire waste

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tioga, Mr. Rockwell.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. John R. K. Scott.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Yes, sir. I would suggest, however, that the gentleman interrogate Mr. Dearden.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shern, in speaking on a bill some days ago on insurance, which was defeated, said that that defeated bill was a companion bill to this one, and that bill now has been defeated.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to state that this is a bill providing for the establishment of a fire marshal department. The insurance companies to-day not only maintain the present department with over one hundred thousand dollars, but there is over and above that paid into that department beween thirty-five and forty thousand dollars that may be used for the payment of this proposed fire marshal department.

Mr. DEARDEN. Mr. Speaker, possibly I can throw some light on the subject in reply to the inquiry of the gentleman from Tioga. He is partially right and partially wrong. It was an assumption that what was done the other day would affect both these bills, and reference was made that in a certain sense the bill that was defeaated the other day, bearing on insurance, was a companion bill to this one. They were to this extent, that the passage of one necessarily involved the passage of the other, in the absence of a provision for the maintenance of this fire marshal department, in order to make either of them effective, but it is not necessary to go over that now because conditions have changed. That bill that was defeated proposed an act to levy a certain tax upon insurance companies to provide a fund for the support of the fire marshal's office. That bill was defeated and the fire marshall bill is still alive. In this connection, before I say any more, I would like to present a memorial from the Philadelphia Board of Trade bearing upon this question.

The SPEAKER. This memorial will be read and presneted as a petition.

Mr. DEARDEN. Mr. Speaker, it would probably be wise for me to briefly recur to what the real issue was at the time this subject was last before the House. Issue was taken with myself and others who were advocating the passage of this bill upon the ground that if you should pass that bill it would involve an additional tax upon the mutual insurance companies of this State. Now, this situation is changed. There is no question now as to the taxation of the mutual insurance companies or any other class of insurance companies. All that has been relegated out of any consideration whatever. I wish to amplify what my friend from Philadelphia, Mr. J. R. K. Scott, uttered a moment ago in order that my purpose be better understood. What he meant to say was that the taxes or fees paid into the insurance department of this State by the insurance companies in the State amount to something like one hundred and forty thousand dollars a year, and that the expenses of this proposed bureau, which is about to be inaugurated, would amount to a gross cost of probably from thirty-five to forty thousand dollars a year, while the expenses of the bureau at present leave a net amount, a clear net surplus to the credit of the Commonwealth, with which this may be paid. Now, it has been proposed, and I supposed I am safe in saying and in assuming the authority to say that the suggestion has been made under the full sanction of the chief executive of the Commonwealth himself, that such a fund necessary to cover the cost of maintaining this bureau shall be taken from this surplus, and, therefore, it will cost the insurance companies nothing but what they now are paying. The question presents itself in this form: Do you want a fire marshal bureau in this State? Let me recall what I said on a former occasion as bearing with some effect upon the suggestion of whether we want or not, or whether we should or not be governed very largely upon what experience has established as to the efficiency of the system in other states. I wish to recite to you what has been the history of several bureaus in other states in this country. I have shown you by official figures what can be done from a practical side by these bureaus and have shown you how they have cut down fire loss in other states where they have been established, something like fifty per cent. How, and why? Because this means the establishment of a certain sort of police supervision on all questions pertaining to fire loss in a commonwealth. It provides for an official who shall be armed with all the power necessary to hold an inquest upon all fires and causes of all fires. It is a means to an end, that end being the running down of incendiarism, and prevent, so far as possible, many fires which are known in fire insurance circles as the moral hazard; meaning fires resulting not at all from arson but from a wilful carelessness in one form or another. If a man has a stock of goods and business is poor and he is hard up and he wants to realize some money, he becomes careless and leaves fires in a careless way and in an unsafe situation, and while he don't directly put the torch to his establishment, he "winks the other eye" and is careless, and in that way fires do occur on a very large scale in all the commonwealths of this country. The object of this bill or this bureau and this fire marshal department is in the direction of minimizing fire losses, and for the punishment of cri
and now the question comes up, do you want that system not? You will make a mistake in not establishing it. T memorial is simply a fair expression of the opinions of surance men and the purposes of great business men u this question.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, one of the m important things, I suppose, that we want to consider is find out in passing this bill where the expenses is c
ing from to pay the fire marshal department in the St of Pennsylvania. There is now paid as fees by the vari insurance companies of Pennsylvania, local and foreign, hundred and forty thousand dollars a year, that is paid i the treasury to maintain a department. From that fu that is annually paid as fees to the Commonwealth of Pe sylvania it is the purpose to maintain this buerau. In O
there has been passed such a bill as this which has redu
the fire waste from eleven million dollars to five million lars, and there have been fifty-six arrests and convicti for arson in one year.

I desire to say that Michigan has just passed an act
this character. It is established in the direction of p venting incendiary fires; it is established for the purp of investigating the cause of a fire, and acts in the inter of property owners throughout the rural districts, as w as in the city. This is one of the measures that is go to give those who live in the rural district, as much as p sible, protection against fire, as well as those who live the larger cities. This bill is sanctioned by the Execut of this Commonwealth, and is strongly urged by the ins ance department.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of House, it seems to me that we are in somewhat of a pecu position. If I remember the remarks of the gentleman fr Philadelphia, Mr. Shern, correctly, he stated on the floor this House, as the active sponsor of another insurance the one known as the insurance tax bill, which was defeat and he distinctly stated that they were companion bi and that if one should fall the other should fall, and t
the one bill was simply for the purpose of raising money take care of the other, which is this one. I was before insurance committee when these two bills were conside and that was the whole substance of the talk there, that was the understanding and arrangement by which two bills were reported out of committee. What is this b
In the first place it provides that there shall be a marshal established, that there shall be a chief of a dep ment appointed at a salary of five thousand dollars a ye that there shall be a first assistant at a salary of four th sand dollars a year, and two other assistants at salaries three thousand dollars a year each. There shall be ported to this fire marshal department each case of fire, it would cost the State fifty cents for each fire, and if th is anything more done, and any investigation takes pla the investigator shall receive three dollars per day, his penses, his traveling expenses included, and, in additi other expenses and incidentals. From what I have lear from the operation of the New York fire marshal which is similar to this in almost all respects, it cost State of New York upwards of one hundred thousand lars a year in 1910. Do you want such a thing in State? I simply wanted to have the bill explained, wanted to express my opinion on the bill as I understand and I shall be obliged to vote against it.

Mr. MOSES. Mr. Speaker, I have a letter in my h that I received from the chief of the fire department Johnstown, urging me to support this bill, and he claims t it will reduce the number of fires in his section. I thin would be a good plan to take the judgment of fire chiefs this State, and I believe and think that this bill ought be supported.

And said bill having been read at length the third t
and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

On the question,

Will the House adopt the report of the Committee on Conference?

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Abbott.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, here have been established, and according to a Supreme I don't wish to delay this bill by any extended argument, but I wish to state again to the members of this House that the bill in the shape in which it now is does not, to my mind, offer one bit of a further inducement on which to ask any member of this House to vote for it than before, and I say here that if this legislation is enacted every member who votes for it will regret the day he did so. There is absolutely nothing in the present school laws in the State of Pennsylvania that needs any change. Our school laws here have been established, andaccording to a Supreme Court decision they are second to none in this great nation of ours. There is no necessity for this bill, and there is no motive, as I view it, for the passage of this bill except insomuch as it is an attempt to raise the taxes in the city of Philadelphia without the organization taking the responsibility for that raise. There is nothing else in this bill and they have even been willing to go from top to bottom, from one end to the other and put in amendments. They put in every amendment that was offered to get you members in line to vote for it, and that was for but one reason, and that was the only reason. This bill has in view the increase of taxation in the city of Philadelphia from $1.50 to $2.00. They have changed nothing in this bill which makes it better for you or for me, and there has been solutely no consideration of your child or mine, who going to school, with any intention of benefiting them un this act. The State Board is still here, and I only have remind you again, which may not be necessary, that t powers of the State Board of Education in this bill not advisory, and when the next Legislature meets eve member of that Board will be given a large salary. The is no doubt about that, and I think most of the membe of this House would not object to their receiving compe sation if they are to do the work that is laid down f them to do in this code.

Where is the minority representation that was give you Democrats in this bill as you sent it out of this Hous
That has been wiped out by the Senate. They give y absolutely nothing in that line. If you will examine t code from top to bottom you will find that it was done f
just one or two purposes—raising taxes in Philadelphia a for the selling of stock of the State Normal School, whi is to-day absolutely worth nothing. Somebody is going be benefited by that. I ask you men to consider this se ously before you vote for it and I ask you to vote this co down.

Mr. AILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I feel that a word of expl nation is necessary on my part. I don't know how the i pression was made, but the impression has been made, th
I was, in a measure, as a Representative of the Grange o ganization, responsible for the amendment for the increa in salaries, provided in the amendments that were to go i
Some of you may remember that early in the session I i troduced a bill providing that the State should pay t salaries of the school teachers—minimum salaries for a fu minimum term. That bill being allowed the courtesy passing second reading, was peremptorily dumped into t hands of the Appropriation Committee, where it still r mains. I don't want to have that confused with the ide that I have been here advocating the increasing of t teachers' salaries, however much they may deserve it a however anxious I would be to give it. I had the hon to present an amendment to this bill when it was befo
the House which the House was kind enough and goo enough to insert without almost any opposition. The Se ate has seen fit to cut that amendment out entirely, and now stands before you as it was in its original form i this respect. You people who are fortunate enough to liv in the rich districts can be assessed six mills on a dolla
Those not quite so fortunate, who live in the second a third class districts are assessed twenty mills on the dolla
Those who are so unfortunate as to live in the faurth-clas district are assessed twenty-five mills on the dollar. Th
State Board of Education will say to those poor districts
"You must be assessed to the limit, if necessary, in ord to keep open for the minimum terms, your district school you will be deprived of the State appropriation. Mr. Speak er and gentlemen of the House, if I am here as a represen ative of anything it is as a representative in favor of th principle of equalization of taxation; the equal distribu tion of the burdens of taxation for the maintenance of th government.

It seems to me that there are gentlemen even in thi House who feel this extreme disproportion in the matter o taxation in this State of ours. We have just as good lan in Juniata County as there is in any portion of this Stat but some of it is just as poor. There is one of our townshi that belongs to the poor class. Here is a man with a famil that must be taken care of, and he desires to buy one o those farms, costing perhaps two thousand dollars, with thousand dollar mortgage on it. He pays a thousand dollar on it and pays the taxes without any reference to the mor gage, then a school director will hold a club over that ma and make that man pay a tax for school purposes—that i in addition to his other taxes, including the interest on hi mortgage, while a little railroad that runs through ther pays 2 1-2 mills, and what is true of that is the average o the railroads of this State. I tell you, gentlemen, it wil pay some of you in the next two years to settle this ques tion in Pennsylvania. If the present increase continues th consequences will be, with such powers of taxation, it wil simply drive that poor man who has a two thousand dolla farm, with a thousand dollar mortgage, off his farm, as yo have done in our county—many of them. The census re ports to-day show that in the last decade, this great pros perous decade, 19 counties in Pennsylvania have lost in pop

on in the rural districts, and a lot of other counties lost also, and the average only has been saved because have large interests and manufactories in the State.
e may be good in this school code; there is a lot of
in it, but I cannot support this proposition.

r. HENRY. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, extremely glad at this time to have an opportunity to k in favor of this bill, which is as meritorious a bill as that has ever pended in this House. This bill was introd into this House early in this session, and has been in hands of those who have had experience in educational
. We don't think that it is perfect, but we do believe there is much improvement over the school laws that exist in this Commonwealth, and any fair-minded man concede it, and that it is superior in many of the proviwhich it contains. I don't wish to prolong discussion his bill in any way, or hamper discussion, but I wish to this, in reply to the gentleman from Philadelphia, who claimed that there has been nothing but politics played e transaction of the business of the House relative to school code. I wish to make the assertion that if there ever been one bill that has been watched carefully and l upon in this House without any political play, this is bill. Politics has not taken an essential part in the ness of presenting this bill to this House! If there no districts in the State of Pennsylvania excepting adelphia alone we would be glad to go along with Phila-hia and give them what they want, but, Mr. Speaker gentlemen of the House, there are districts outside of City of Philadelphia that have to be considered; their itions must be considered, and the education of the lren who desire to attend school in other districts must ive attention. We should not pay any particular attento the plea that has been made that the purpose of the
has been to raise taxation in the City of Philadelphia
e, without laying it to the Organization. Philadelphia ly one district; there is many others. I desire also to to the gentleman who says that there is not one bit of t in this; that there is nothing in this bill that would f benefit to the boys and girls in this great State of sylvania. Every man who knows anything about school
; any man who has ever taught school for one term s full well that in the country districts there is a total of proper supervision. The school, under the present are poorly supervised, and it is almost impossible to re the results that should be secured. If for no other n that this code provides that there shall be assistant ty superintendents in each district whose sole work will o furnish schools with teachers who are placed in these ols to teach the youth—if for no other reason but one, this school code should be passed. That is not we have heard it said that taxation has been so enorsly increased in the fourth class districts that people are on the farms are driven out of business and they compelled, practically, to go to the poorhouse. I believe, e gentleman who makes that statement, and who mains that position, if he will stop to examine and consider proposition for a minute, he will find that it is true that taxation has not been raised one cent. Prior to this the old law provided that fifteen mills would be raised school purposes and ten mills for building purposes, and makes it exactly twenty-five mills, as we are now prong to make it in the adoption of this school code. It not require that we shall assess twenty-five mills, it requires that fifteen mills shall be assessed for certain oses, and that fifteen mills is for school purposes. The leman from Juniata has invested money in his time many times in his life money that he has invested has ght back to him a fuller reward than the money invested the education of the youth of this land. I would not ate to pay ten times the money I pay to-day for the tenance of public schools when I consider the remunerthat I am receiving for my family.

would like also to say in regard to minority repre-ation that there has been no motive on the part of member of this House, or any member of the educaal committee, or on the part of any member of the erence committee to inject politics into this proposi-by eliminating a minority representation. If this se has faith in the committee that has so studiously ked upon this code from time to time, and which they essed when this code was brought from the commit-they surely cannot object now, because the Senate has very generously, and graciously receded from every amendment they placed into this code, and returned it to the House practically the same as it left the House and left the committee on education for the House. I wish to say, in conclusion, if we turn this bill down at this time, every member who will vote against it will live to see the day in the not far distant future when he will regret his vote upon this bill. I believe that there has been no bill that has ever passed this House that is of as great moment to the people of this great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as this school code. This code has been carefully considered by code men; it has been gone into in every detail by men who have had broad experience, in law, in finance, and in education, and for that reason, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, you should give this code your vote. We believe that it is meritorious; we believe that it implies all that is honest, upright and for the upbuilding of the schools of this Commonwealth. If we are, at this session, to turn this code down, I ask you, then, when are we going to enact a school law that will be in such shape, and be clear enough and concise enough and broad enough to meet the needs of the public educational institutions of Pennsylvania! I ask, in all seriousness, that the members of this House give this code a unanimous vote.

Mr. ALTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire very briefly, but most sincerely, to concur in the arguments which have been so fully and so ably presented by my friend, the gentleman from Indiana. It sems to me, Mr. Speaker, that we have come to the point where we are face to face with this simple question; are we or are we not going to have a school code, as one of the achievements of this legislative session? I think, Mr. Speaker, that it will be conceded by every member of this House that the people of Pennsylvania have been looking and are looking to this Legislature, to revise the school laws. I think, Mr. Speaker, that if this Legislature adjourns without having made any effective attempt to enact a code the great body of the people of Pennsylvania will be disappointed and the record of this legislature will be seriously weakened. Now, Mr. Speaker, I submit that upon this question of concurring in this conference report, upon this question of whether we shall or shall not enact a school code at this session, there is little profit in taking out this or that feature from the many details included in this code, and we should decide fairly whether or not we approve of a feature. I desire to say that there is not a member in this House who, if he had the power to enact a school code, or if he had the power to write the bill which this House is to pass would write it as this bill is written, but would write it, in some respects, different from the way in which it is written here. I am sure we would never get anywhere, and we will never be able to enact any bill as comprehensive, and covering as many subjects as this bill covers, unless each member here is willing to surrender his individual judgment on one or more points in order that the whole bill may pass.

I am quite certain that there is one point to which I am opposed, and I am personally not in accord with, and I greatly regret the fact that this code places the power of appointment of school directors of the City of Pittsburg in the hands of the Common Pleas Court. I voted against that proposition when it was up as a separate proposition on second reading, but the majority voted the other way I cannot say. I am not going to give up that one point, unless that proposition which I regard as important, is made to suit my judgment, unless that point is covered to meet and suit my judgment I cannot vote for the code, for then I must vote against the whole code and vote against the great amount of good that is in it which my friend, the gentleman from Juniata, has so truly said, this code contains. But, Mr. Speaker, this bill, if passed, will only stand for two years without an opportunity for amendment. This bill at present furnishes a symmetrical, a well-drafted, a complete school law. It is so drafted that at any time any one of the sections may be amended and a section put in its place, and still leave the bill complete, and a symmetrical and well-drafted law. Two years ago, after a great deal of discussion, with a great deal of difference of opinion and a great deal of controversy we voted on a school code and it did not become a law. Two years having elapsed we are now exactly where we were then—differing and discussing matters in detail relating to the code. If this code is defeated, where will we be two years from now? Exactly where we are to-night. If this bill becomes a law, then, in two years from now it will be on the statute books subject to easy amendment in any of its provisions, and further than that, we will have had two years of experience with it. One gentleman may vote one way and another gentleman may vote another, and one may argue in favor of one proposition or another will argue in another, but nothing is certain without experience, but when in operation for two years, there will be something by way of experience to determine what is desirable or what is not. We all know the long and faithful work which has been put upon this bill by the school commission. We all know, and I think every member of this House appreciates, the long and faithful work which has been put on this bill during this session by our able committee on education. I think every member of this House must appreciate the very able work which has been performed by our conferees during the past week in the conference between the representatives of the Senate and the Representatives of the House. If w don't have before us now a bill upon which the members of this Legislature can unite in passing, the time will be remote when we will have such a bill, but if we will now consider the advantage of putting this bill into operation for two years to see how it works out and to see what the result of its various features may be, we will have an opportunity to approach the subject in the light of experience. In the meantime everybody admits that the code contains very much that is undoubtedly good, and all that will be undoubtedly good will be in operation for two years and the people will get the benefit of anything which may prove to be good; and that which is demonstrated not to be good in two years may be taken up and amended without any great controversy; and this can be done from time to time and errors can be corrected and defects amended until finally we will have an almost perfect school code and we will never get it in any other way. In this way we will have a perfected school code worthy of the great educational system of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the conference report.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. McNICHOLS. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 596, entitled:

An act providing for the liquidation distribution of assets and dissolution of corporations under the supervision of the Commissioner of Banking and repealing all acts of Assembly supplied hereby or inconsistent herewith was defeated on final passage.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. McNICHOLS. Mr. President, I voted no.

Mr. BUCKMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. BUCKMAN. Mr. President, I voted no.

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I think that if the Senators will peruse this bill that they will find they are unduly concerned as to the provisions of the bill. It is a department bill, sent in here in the interest of the whole Commonwealth and refers to institutions that go into the hands of a receiver. Now, in our town we have had examples of institutions involving four or five or six hundred thousand dollars wherein people representing the small depositors in the City of Philadelphia deposit three or four or five hundred dollars and have had to wait for years and years before they received their full allotment of what was left of these defunct institutions, and we have observed through the columns of a newspaper of that the receivers and appraisers and auditors have drawn enormous sums of money in the shape of fees for their service, which in point of fact, if they were properly apportioned, would represent but a small part of those funds. I think in the interest of the depositors of those institutions that this is a meritorious bill and I think we should have faith in the integrity of the Banking Commissioner to accord him the powers that this bill represents. I think there is an undue feeling of apprehension as to some of the provisions in this bill, which if properly looked into, I think, would be removed.

Mr. TUSTIN. Mr. President, when this bill was introduced it had a building association feature, which was probably objectionable to a great many building association people throughout the State of Pennsylvania. That feature has been eliminated and been removed. There is nothing I can see in this bill that any honest trust company or honest bank in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania need fear. It is not as drastic as the National Banking Law. It gives the Commissioner of Banking a right to go in and examine into the assets of banking institutions in the State of Pennsylvania. If he finds they are not correct, if he finds there is any shortage, or anything wrong, he then takes charge of the banking institution and they have a chance to reorganize. If they do not reorganize it is then put up to him, the same as the banking examiners of the United States, to wind up the said company at once without the long delay and expense of winding up that is now associated with the dissolution and the failure of our various banks and trust companies. It does not at all affect the private, honest banker; it affects only those banks to which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania grants a charter, and as far as those banks are concerned the State stands back of those banks and trust companies and should protect the depositors and I do not believe there is any reason whatever that any honest banker or trust company throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania need fear this bill. On the contrary, there is every reason why the Senators and Representatives should pass this bill so as to protect the depositors throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. FOX. Mr. President, this bill was before the Judiciary General Committee, of which I have the honor of being a member. I opposed the reporting out of the bill at that time because, as has been stated, it referred also to building association, and I thought it went too far. If I mistake not it is one of the matters to which His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth mentioned in his inaugural address and which was received, I remember, approvingly.

I know that it has been gotten up carefully by the department in the interest of the public. I have carefully gone over the matter representing the department and I have concluded to vote for the bill. The bill seriously affects the bar of which I am a member, in that it may take away considerable of our business, but that has nothing to do with the merits of the bill, and I shall not permit that to enter into the case and I shall vote for the bill and trust it may pass.

Mr. WILBERT. Mr. President, when this bill was first introduced it included building and loan associations. I had quite a number of objectious from my city pertaining to the bill when it had that feature in it. Since then I have not had one objection from any of our city institutions or trust banks of the City of Pittsburg. I had made up my mind originally to vote against the bill but since they have eliminated the objectionable features I cannot see how I can do otherwise than to vote for the bill and think it is a very good measure.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. CUMBLER asked unanimous consent to call up ouse Bill No. 512, page 38 of yesterday's calendar, bills on nal passage postponed for the present.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 512, as follows:

n act regulating the compensation of tax collectors in the several boroughs and townships of this Commonwealth Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Rep- sentatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in Gen- al Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority the same That hereafter the tax collectors of the several oroughs and townships of this Commonwealth shall be entitled and may retain for their own compensation four per centum all moneys collected by them as taxes where the combined uplicates do not exceed the said sum of forty thousand dol- rs Where the combined duplicates exceed the said sum of rty thousand dollars the said collectors shall be allowed a ommission of two per centum on all taxes paid to him on which abatement of five per centum is allowed and five per centum taxes afterwards collected Section 2 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this t be and the same are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tioga, Mr. Rock- vell.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I simply want to in- orm the House that this is a bill intended to increase he compensation of tax assessors from fifteen to twenty- ve per cent.

Mr. CUMBLER. Mr. Speaker, it does not affect the axation law in any way, only the collector's fees under orty thousand gross duplicate.

Mr. MARTIN. Mr. Speaker, as I understand this bill it ncreases the fee of the collector who has a duplicate nder thirty-five thousand so that it will amount to as much as the man who collects forty-five thousand. The amount is not taken into consideration in the matter at all.

Mr. ROCKWELL. Mr. Speaker, I just want to give one word of explanation in regard to how it affects the borough I live in. Our tax duplicate is about thirty thousand. This would increase the tax collector's commission between three hundred and ten and three hundred and fifty dollars in that one borough. It strikes me that they are getting enough now. It was voted down once, and it ought to be voted down again.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

Section 2 All acts inconsistent with the provisions of t act be and the same are hereby repealed

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker.

The Speaker. The gentleman from Delaware, Mr. R. Baldwin.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, this bill is to reme a condition which ought not to exist in our State. At t present time, under the law as it is now on the stat books of this Commonwealth, the public property of c leges, institutions of learning and charitable institutio pay no taxes—all their property is exempt from taxati The result of this is that in my county and in seve other portions of the State various institutions have co out and bought large tracts of land. Immediately up the purchase of that land it is exempt from road and sch taxes. The result is that it throws upon the remaining ta payers of these districts all of the burdens of local tax tion. If you will pass this bill the result will be that t land and the land only, however, will be taxed. This w not mean the taxing of the buildings or any improveme that may be made on that land, or put upon the land, b simply the land that is not necessary for the enjoyme or the operations of the buildings will be exempt and th will remain as they are now. This bill simply places t land where I believe it ought to be—to help to bear t local burden of taxation.

And said bill having been read at length the third tim considered and agreed to,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consider tion of House Bill No. 711, entitled:

An act regulating the payment on checks when there sh be insufficient funds to meet same and regulating the procedu in actions to recover the balance

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the Hous this bill provides for and applies to a contingency whi probably has arisen with every member of this House. a man gives you a check for fifty and he only has thir dollars in the bank, you will get the thirty dollars and certificate for the balance, which will act in the same wa as a check and can be used in any court of record. Und the old law as it stands now the bank can refuse you an amount and the check is returned "not sufficient funds. This will enable the honest man who gives a check to ha the certificate presented to him and he will pay the diffe ence where he has made an honest mistake. The man th is a criminal and plays upon the community by putting o numerous checks of this character will have what small d posit he has in the bank cleaned out by the first check, an after the first check is thus given he will have committed crime if he continues to give more checks. If you men wi to stop this kind of check giving you will support this bi At first the banks did not like the idea of it, but sin that time they see it is a chance to clear out small d posits. You will also not be compelled to pay prote charges on checks from outside banks, and, therefore, I a you to support this bill.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I do not like th bill. It seems to me that it will involve the banks in di putes and law suits where they have no right to be involve If you have not sufficient money at the present time bank to pay a check, then the check is returned because insufficient funds. Under the conditions of this bill the ge tleman states that the certificate that is issued, after a po tion of the check has been paid, can be used in court. T bill does not say anything of the kind. The bill says it ca be used as prima facia evidence. In case of a law suit t bank is brought into the controversy. It is only intend inject a third party into disputes that does not desire to involved in law suits. The present laws, so far as crim- als are concerned in dealing with banks, amply protect the iblic and punish the criminal. This does not punish the iminal, but it will bring your bonks into controversies in hich they don't want to be mixed. The present system, in y judgment, is better left as it is than to regulate this statute. Business regulates these things, and banks can gulate this matter and avoid being involved in law suits. know sometimes honest men give checks with the under- anding that the check will not be presented until a certain me. If the man to whom the check is given violates that greement it involves the honest man in a difficulty by rea- n of the other party failing to keep the agreement, and, in y opinion, this is not good legislation.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate e gentleman from Delaware.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware per- it himself to be interrogated?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Yes, sir, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, has the gentleman received ny information from any bank in this State that they ob- ect to this bill?

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I would say in an- wer to that, that I believe that the banks in my county ave enough confidence in me, as many of my friends and nstituents have, to vote upon measures of this kind accord- g to my good judgment, without any special request on eir part.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, nsidered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constituion, the yeas nd nays were taken and were as folows, viz:

Less than the majority required by the Constitution aving voted in the affirmative, the question was deter- ined in the negative and the bill falls.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and considera- ion of House Bill No. 713, entitled:

An act to provide for an additional law judge of the several ourts of the Forty-fifth Judicial District

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of this ouse: Not being a member of the Bar of Lackawanna ounty, I have been informed of the congested condition f this Court, and Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of this ouse, it is the prayer of all the members of the Bar of ackawanna county, and it has also been endorsed by our onorable President Judge, and, Mr. Speaker and members f this House, he said that we should have an additional aw and Judge and, gentlemen, this bill should become a aw. And, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of this House, I ould like to say further; in other words, the work is here o do and it is for the interest of the public that this ork should be done with expedition and with care.

It has been many years since the number of Judges for Lackawanna has been increased and during that time the population of this district, in common with other districts, in the coal measures has been growing rapidly and steadily.

This necessarily means more work for the courts, the result of which, under existing conditions, is either an overworked bench or opinions hastily written or delay in adjudication, or relief by Judges from other districts.

The last of these alternatives is the one that has been generally followed. But growth all over the State has thrown more cases into court, with the result that it is becoming more and more difficult to get "outside" Judges to serve in emergency. And the emergency here in Lackawanna and in Luzerne, where it is also proposed to increase the size of the bench, is practically continuous.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of this House, the only argument against the creation of another Judgeship in Lackawanna is expense. This argument has slight merit, as the possibly necessity of renting "chambers" for one Judge is the only expense that would fall upon the county. The State pays Judges' salaries.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I call for a verification of the roll.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 714, as follows:

An act fixing the salary of registers of wills in counties of this Commonwealth having a population of one million four hundred thousand or over and providing for the payment of fees or commissions earned by said officers into the county treasury

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That hereafter the salary of registers of wills in every county of this Commonwealth having a population of one million four hundred thousand or over shall be ten thousand ($10,000) dollars a year

Section 2 The registers of wills in said counties shall pay into the county treasury all fees and commissions of any kind earned by them for services performed either for the county or for the State or otherwise

Section 3 This act shall not effect the compensation of any register of wills elected prior to the enactment hereof during the term for which he shall have been elected

Section 4 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, this bill is intended to end one of the sinecures in the government of Philadelphia. The estates which go through the Orphans' Courts are sometimes of such large amounts that the three per cent. commission which the Register of Wills is allowed under the law on collateral inheritance amounts to sums which are entirely out of proportion to the value of the work performed.

Now, I have consulted the Auditor General on this subject, and I find that in the year 1909 the Register of Wills collected from this source the sum of $33,373.80; that in 1908 he collected $24,036.65; that in 1910 the sum collected was $23,264.62; in 1902 the sum collected was $27,422. Now, I think, gentlemen, that those sums are entirely out of proportion to the value of the work. This bill makes the salary of the Register ten thousand dollars. He now gets five thousand dollars for his county work and all these enormous commissions for his work as a State officer. The bill which I have introduced provides that for the whole work he shall receive the ample sum of ten thousand dollars, and the rest goes to the county.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege: I addressed the Chair before that vote was read and asked that the roll be verified.

The SPEAKER. The Chair did not recognize the gentleman from Philadelphia before the vote was announced.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I addressed the Chair in time and I ask that the roll be verified.

The SPEAKER. The objection of the gentleman will be entered upon the record, but the Chair has already rendered its decision.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

The SPEAKER. There is no appeal.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask fairness and I appeal from the decision of the Chair.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 717, entitled:

An act to amend the second section of an act approved the seventeenth day of April Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and five entitled "An Act providing that the district attorneys in all counties whose population does not exceed one hundred and fifty thousand shall be paid a salary and fixing the same which shall be in lieu of all fees and in full compensation for their services and providing for the appointment of assistant district attorneys in said counties and for the compensation of the same and providing that the fees heretofore allowed the district attorneys upon indictments shall remain in amount as heretofore but shall hereafter be as part of the costs for the use and benefit of the proper county" by fixing the salaries of district attorneys in counties having more than thirty thousand but not more than forty thousand inhabitants

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I appeal from your decision on the last bill. Does the Speaker refuse my constitutional right to appeal from his decision on the passage of House Bill No. 716?

The SPEAKER. There is no question before the House except the passage of House Bill No. 717.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I was up in proper time and I insist upon my constitutional privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman is out of order and will take his seat.

On the question,
Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HORACE B. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, there seems to be a misunderstanding in regard to this bill. I want to state that it only affects six counties in this State that have a population of between thirty and forty thousand. We all know that up to about four years ago the district attorneys were paid fees and no salary. At that time the fee bill passed and the salary for that officer in counties between thirty and forty thousand population was made x hundred dollars. I know from personal experience iat the fees of that office amount to eight hundred dolrs. Now, this bill is simply to raise the salary of the istrict attorneys in counties having a population of from iirty to forty thousand inhabitants from six hundred to ght hundred dollars. I leave it to any reasonable man this House whether that is too much for the district torney in counties of that population.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, nsidered and agreed to.

Shall the bill pass finally?

The amendment was read by the Clerk as follows:

Section 1, line 29, by striking out the word "Presidential" and inserting the word "presiding;" and in line 31 by striking out the words "Presidential elector" and inserting the word "candidate."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, this bill as it is now before us is not the same bill which was introduced by the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Tustin; and only a few hours ago that Senator asked me to publicly state that this is not the bill that he introduced and that he does not countenance this bill at all. Now, gentlemen, let that be an intimation that the members of the organization, Republicans of most undoubted standing, recognize this attempt to read out of the party the only strong independent opposition to the Republican party that now exists. Such political men recognize this to be a dastardly political trick, and every man who desires to maintain his reputation for political fairness and who desires to live in political life with a clean record will vote for this amendment, and restore the bill to the proper shape in which it was to the Senate. The registration bill was one of those pieces of progressive legislation which was brought forth by the special session of 1906, and which President Roosevelt declared to be the best set of legislation that has ever beeen passed at one session by a State Legislature. There are two things which the bill as amended now in our committee attempts to do; in the first place, it reduces the number of registrars in each division in cities of the first and second class from four to three. Now, there is a vital reason why there shold be four. The idea is this: The purpose of the present registration act is to preserve the present registration law, and for that reason the purity of the ballot. Now, it is well known that if any one party has a majority upon the registration board there are the most tremendous demands in close elections to allow illegal names to be placed on the registration list. If now no party has a majority but there is a board of four, then every person desiring to be registered must have at least one of the minority registrars; if his case is just, as in all of the ordinary cases, this happens without trouble. If however, there is trouble, there is always an appeal to the board of registration in the City Hall, and from the board of registration direct to the court of common pleas, and from the court of common pleas to the Supreme Court of the State, and, therefore, there is no possibility that anybody will be cut out of the opportunity to have his case properly adjudicated. If however, there is a majority representation upon the registration board, then there is every chance that that large majority will keep proper registration away and will place improper registrations upon the books.

The other thing which this bill attempts to do is to change the definition of a party, so that there shall be no such thing as a party so far as registration is concerned, unless that party has had Presidential electors. Now, every one knows that the questions which are determined at Presidential elections are not the questions which are vital to the city and the State; it is the very natural thing that the electors of this State on Presidenial elections should be divided on national questions, but when it comes to matters of proper and honest administration in the State and city, then it is proper that the lines of national issues shall be obliterated. It happens then that in elections that are not Presidential the real opposition to the dominant party does not necessarily at all come from those who have set themselves up against it at the last Presidential election, and it can be proved and has been proved by a very careful collation of statistics that since the 1904 Presidential election the minority party had not been the minority party in the city and county of Philadelphia, but it has been an independent party, which has gone under several names, no matter whether it be the City, the William Penn or the Keystone party. But the actual opposition to the Republican party which has been the strongest has not been the Democratic party and has not been a party that has had Presidential electors, but is a party organized for local purposes. Now, the purpose of the act before us is to so change the present law that nobody may have register and be represented except the Republican and Democratic parties, who have had Presidential electors, and, therefore, the strongest opposition to the Republican party in local and State affairs will be absolutely cut out and not recognized by law. These things are wrong. They are mere political tricks. The purpose of this amendment is not to destroy party faith, and the most hide-bound organization man can have no reason to oppose this amendment.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, the statement that has been made by the gentleman from Germantown is a characteristic statement, coming, as it does, from him, mouthing the voice of his party. He accuses those of use who are party men with being unfair. Now, let us analize this position. In the first place, there can be no complaint upon the part of either his independent party, the Democratic party or the Republican party upon reducing this number of registrars from four to three in the election precincts. This same question arose here but a few days ago on the question of the number of members of the school board, when the question was upon the odd or even number of members for the board, and it was decided that when the number was even it had caused numerous complaints and numerous deadlocks. I do not know, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, whether or not the gentleman from Germantown knows anything about the working of the registration board, whether or not his interest in politics becomes active until any ticket is put in the field for general election, but if he did, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, he would know that one of the strongest oppositions to this personal registration law is the fact that there are deadlocks when the two Republican registrars are pitted against the other registrars of the minority party. When he says that this is but a political trick he speaks from a sense of ignorance, because where there are four registrars on the registration board that brings about the question of improper influence and improper persuasion and brings about the results of corruption in the registration board, because it will ever be where there is the possibility of deadlock the majority party will try to secure the election or control of the Democratic member or one of the other members in order that they may have a majority of the board. Now, when this board is made up of three and it has two of the majority party and one of the minority party all possibility of improper persuasion, unless there is downright corruption, is past. I say, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, that where there is a board to pass upon the personal right to register of the voter that the odd number is the ideal number; therefore, there can be no complaint in reducing the number of registrars from four to three; in fact, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, many of the independent members of this House have said they are satisfied to have it three members, provided that the questions of qualifications of those electors be fixed as at the last election, rather than the Presidential election. Therefore, I take it that so far as that portion of the bill is concerned there can be no complaint, and the amendments offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia in the interests of aiding along proper lines personal registration would bring about results that would not be beneficial. Now, when he complains, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, that this bill is for the purpose of carrying out a political trick he states that which is not sound in reason. Let us look at this. We have in this broad land parties with definite principles. We consider ourselves party men. There are the two great parties in this country battling to-day for supremacy and carrying out the principles of their parties, one the great Republican party and the other the great Democratic party. Those parties carry out the principles of their party at the Presidential election. There is where the parties originate. There is where the parties stand. It is in the Presidential election that the question of party principles stands or falls. Now, what is advocated by the gentleman from Germantown? He asks that their party be given the same standing as a national party. Now what happens? They have in the city of Philadelphia, in the city of Pittsburg and in the city of Scranton—because it is only these three cities that this bill applies to—they have men who desire at municipal elections to leave the party that they belong to to join in an independent movement to carry out their own ideas as to municipal improvements. Very proper. It is their right. It is their right to leave their Democratic or their Republican party at the time of their municipal election, and voice their desires as to the ruling of their cities, or the ruling of their county, but if they want to have their party as a party, then let them come out at the Presidenial election with their Presidential electors and stand by the principles of their parties, not, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, be Republicans or Democrats in the Presidential years and then in the odd years in their municipal fight become Cityites, Keystonites, Unionites, anl expect that they should have their registrars representing their party, their Presidential party, and then in the next year again have their registrars representing their independent party. I say, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, that this act that has been offered is not unfair; that the amendment suggested by the gentleman from Germantown is unfair. They are asking that the party, the independent party, takes the place of the Democratic party. They say that they are really the minority party. Well, if they are the minority party, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, let them show it by their vote and their party. Where is their party? Have they a party? Have they a standing in this broad State, and this broad land as a party? I have heard of no Presidential electors. I have heard of their independent voice in the city, I have heard their independent voice in the State. Why, but a few days ago, when a prominent merchant and member of the independent party of Philadelphia was called upon by his party, the Keystone party, to come from his independent standing and take issue as an independent candidate against the Republican Congressional nominee in the Second Congressional district of Philadelphia, he refused to leave the Republican party on national issues, while, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, that gentleman to-day is one of the gentlemen whose voice is being sounded from the lips of the gentleman from Germantown in asking that his independent party be given a position upon the board of registrars of the division. I say, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, that the amendment that is offered by the gentleman from Germantown is unfair. They do not come into the open and fight for their party. They are Republicans when it comes to the question of protecting their mills and protecting their dividends by the tariff, but they become independents when it comes to the question of electing mayors and electing councilmen. Let them take their position and be one party or the other. Let them be manly enough to come out in the open and meet the Republiuan party, meet the Democratic party, meet the Socialist party and meet the Prohibition party, and then let them take their position as a party and not ask this House to legislate them into a party.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, in reply to my worthy friend from Philadelphia and the arguments he has just given you, I would like to remind him that he himself at one time was a member of one of these parties, which was not the Republican party, but the party which started him upon his first entrance into politics, when he went with that peerless leader, Mr. Durham, and started to fight the Republican party in the City of Philadelphia in 1896. I would call attention to that fa and remind him that he has not always stood shoulder shoulder with his great Republican party which he no
so ably defends.

I stand here before you as one of the representatives a party which he says has no standing in this State, a I would remind him that that same party has at the la election polled 385,000 votes in this State, and he shou not forget that fact that it was the second highest vo in the State upon State issues, and that it was also t majority party in many of the districts in this State.

But what does he say to you members from the count districts outside of the cities which are not affected by th bill? He tells you frankly it does not apply to you, a also asks you as fair minded intelligent representatives your various parties not to meddle in this transactio which is for naught but to give greater strength to th party and its allies in the two greatest cities of this Co monwealth. What does the Republican party mean by su as bill as this? If they are the dominant party why a they trouble about who shall be the minority party. Wh is it their business? They believe that to the victor b longs the spoils. That has been their banner floated to t breeze for years. Then why should they meddle in th question of whom shall be the minority representative the registration board. It does not apply to them. Sha you say by your votes that a party which has cast a vo of four to one should be legislated out of existence simp
to please them who have no interest in this matter—or pe haps they have an interest which they don't care to t
you about. Perhaps they are interested in the Donnell Ryan Democratic ring in Philadelphia; perhaps they a interested in the Brennan ring in Pittsburg. Perhaps th want to take care of them and want them upon the reg tration boards which my friend has so admirably describ to you when he talked of corruption. Who is acused this corruption that he speaks of? Upon whom is th stigma placed? Surely it has not been upon the Keysto registrars. They have not been numerous enough. But this talk with regard to collusion and corruption has em nated from sources which have placed that stigma upon t majority party and which has used its power to bend t registration boards to do their bidding. Now, men, y men who do not live in Philadelphia, Pittsburg or Scra ton have nothing whatever to do with this bill. You ha nothing whatever in that it does not affect you, and appeal—

Mr. HOWARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interroga
the gentleman from Philadelphia.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I refuse to be interrogat until I am through.

I say I am answering what my friend from Philadelph has said that this does not apply to any one but the tw or three cities, and therefore I appeal to the men in th House, who are sane Republicans that it does not apply you because you get what is yours, and I say to the Dem
cratic members of this House who are fair and honest, you cannot be the minority party you want that which not yours. I ask you men, who are men, and I consid every man in this House a true man, and I am proud be a member of this House—I appeal to your fairness.
most matters you have been fair. Sometimes you ha been led astray, but I think that was a mistake of t head and not of the heart, or the steam roller has rolled little too hard, but I ask you men now seriously to consid this bill; not to allow this thing to come to pass whi will only fulfill a prophecy which my friend has stat upon the floor of this Houe which every good Republic and Democratic heart here to-day, be he upon any tick in national affairs, does not wish to see come to pass.
my friend wants a third national party forced on him, p
this bill through. I say to him this is the greatest st
the Republican party can take to foist upon the people
this Commonwealth the inception of a third national par which has gotten to its standard of 385,000 dissatisfied ci zens of this Commonwealth. Does he want that, or do he rather want them to fight out in their municipaliti boroughs or townships the local issues, and even in t
State the issues that arise and which simply belong to t people of this Commonwealth or their locality. I ask y gentlemen now to ponder seriously over that. I do n care in national affairs to be driven away from the par that I love. I am just as good a Republican in nation airs as my friend from Philadelphia, and there are ystoners here who are just as good Democrats as any mocratic man when it comes to their national affairs. t I say in matters of this kind it has nothing whatever do. Here is a question of local jurisdiction absolutely. is matter applies to your home town, your home district d division. I ask you men to leave this party which has en such a tremendous vote and which has a right to mand that right to be called a minority party in the ate of Pennsylvania its rightful place on the registration ard.

Mr. DEARDEN. Mr. Speaker, I shall not ask the attenn of this House for a great length of time. I had not ended to talk upon this question. I do so now only cause of a sense of duty, with a full appreciation of the rit of fair play, even in stern politics. The overshadow question, it appears to me after all, is just this: Is a eat body of men assembled as a political organization, ır hundred thousand strong, of State-wide proportions, entled to have a standing at the hands of the Republican ganization of this State or not? When, as was the fact in e last election, Mr. Berry came down to Philadelphia a nner as to the vote polled throughout the State, exclusive the Philadelphia vote, when he came down with the and total of 382,000 votes polled for him against only four ndred and fiften thousand and some odd votes polled by s Excellency, the present Governor of this Commonwealth, assert that he came down with a moral right to considerion as the chieftain and representative of a great polical body that existed in fact, and was entitled to recogtion.

I do not deal in offensive epithets, in unpleasant personies, nor shall I allow myself to do so. I believe in the irit of fair play. I do not think the organization is altogether bad. I think it has a whole lot of good traits about

Personally, I am not a stranger in that school where st of you are at home, but I want to follow up here, renthetically, what was said by Representative Abbott few moments ago: That when Mr. John R. K. Scott, did fact for a time change his politics, he thought then very ach as we think now. I may also say that when Matthew anley Quay himself became the arch reformer in this ate, and took with him into his camp Israel W. Durham d Boies Penrose, these three men collectively and individually collared me too, and that is where I became an insurgent,'' not a ''reformer''—I like that name a good al better than the name ''reformer.''

But I have learned to know there is wisdom, there is ghteousness in a conscientious protest against high-handed litical methods, no matter where they emanate from, and assert, with great confidence, that the Republican party this State, the Republican organization in this State, is -day on trial. Men high in the organization have themlves said to me on more than one occasion that this meas e is mighty bad politics for them to be engaged in. It dirty politics! Gentlemen, let us play this game fair d with reason, but nevertheless earnestly, and regard the estions here presented upon their merits. Do you gentleen for one moment, assuming that you jam through this oposition, as we are told you are going to, think that we ill supinely, and meekly and weakly lie down and swallow as a final outcome of what we are to do, or where we are stand politically in the affairs of this State. Is it not, the contrary, far more probable that with the red blood at flows in the veins of some of us there will be a protest at will be heard from one end of the State to the other in ch terms of indignation as will stir the manhood of the reat body of the people of the State? Do you doubt it? en want to have fair play. This is not fair play. It is ost unfair play. I want to say to my organization friends ere, as a matter of deliberate conviction, that if you jam is thing through you will repent of it before long. I beeve it will rise up to plague you and it will rise up in such orm and with such emphasis that it will humiliate, if not, deed, overthrow, the dominant political organization of his State. If I were an organization man I should think mighty bad politics to come in here with a determined urpose to crowd such a measure as this through an intellient body of men representing the great Commonwealth. I now how easy it is to go along as a rule under the party ash. I know all about it. I know that the orders must obeyed. But men should respect themselves and have pinions of their own which they have the courage to stand by upon all these matters, notwithstanding the orders issued by the organization.

Now, gentlemen, I might say a great deal more; I have said a great deal more than I intended to say, but I ask you to pause on this question. Think again about it. I repeat again, it is bad politics, and I assert again that the organization that represents the manhood of this State, four hundred thousand strong, is an organization that you cannot trifle with, for the people will not stand it. Don't make that mistake, gentlemen.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I feel constrained to say a few words upon this matter. Whilst it does not affect my own district, yet matters have been taken into it which causes me to feel that this is of some personal interest. Let us remember that we are not legislating for this year. Let us remember that when we pass this bill we are legislating for the future, and that my friends on the other side who are proposing this amendment, while they are now standing up denouncing their brethren, because after all they are all Republicans—that when it comes to registration next year for the Presidential election where will they be. I for one look for them to be hand in hand. I for one look for them to be in most hearty accord on the issues that will then be fought out. And where will we as Democrats be represented in this important matter of registration if this amendment is adopted. I fear very much if we adopt this amendment that the Democrats will be out in the cold. We have some little differences among ourselves on this side of the House. We have some few members who would be known perhaps as Keystoners, because after being nominated by the Democrats they were endorsed by the mongrel party, and in that way secured their election. But let me say to them, too, that they must not forget that while they received thousands of Democratic votes and a few hundred Keystone votes that next year they, too, will want to be Democrats when there is some goal in sight to be won.

Mr. SPEAKER, as I view it, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Germantown is unfair from a Democratic standpoint no matter to which faction we might belong in our party, and I hope that this side of the House will unite in voting it down.

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House, the gentleman from Philadelphia opposing this amendment made reference to what he was pleased to term a mongrel party. The gentleman who has just addressed the House made reference to it as the mongrel party. It is easy to call names. I could call the attention of the gentleman from Philadelphia to the fact that fifty years ago the Republican party may have been termed a mongrel party when that party was organized and when Freemont made his splendid campaign for President of the United States. I doubt not that there was a lot of people running around over this whole nation calling the Republican party the mongrel party, and the mugwamp yarty. The gentleman who just left the floor wanted to know why the Democratic party did not poll the second largest vote in the last election, and I ask the gentleman why his party did not nominate candidates that could have the support of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania. The Chairman of the reorganization of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania, which will be that element in the Democratic party which will be in control of the Democratic party in the future, I hope and believe, Mr. Guthrie, has written an open letter as the head of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania stating that the Keystone party or the independent party, or whatever you please to call it, is entitled to these registrars in the State because they won them, because they are entitled to them, because it is fairness and justice that they should have them. If the Republican party in this State wants a third party, and if the Republican managers of national affairs want a third party I can think of no better way to get it than by jamming measures like this through a Republican Legislature.

The amendment ought to carry because it is fair. Because it certainly appeals to every fair-minded man in the House, and I support the amendment.

Mr. SCHAD. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, coming from the city of Pittsburg as I do and representing a legislative district in that city, I would not let this opportunity pass by without saying a word against this amendment. I am fully aware and remember very well when this bill became a law in 1906. I want to say to you, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of this House, that that body of men that enacted that bill a law were just as intelligent as this body is at this present moment. But let me again say to you that during all that discussion it was never considered for a moment to take into consideration these independent parties that spring up from time to time. The only parties that were taken into consideration at that time were national parties, and it never was intended to have incorporated into this bill any party such as the Lincoln party, the independent party, and who knows what party it may be next year. Where is there a member in this House that can state positively what the Keystone party will be next year under what name or what colors it will fly. They have no national organization. In the city of Pittsburg let me inform the members of this House that we do not recognize them as party men, because they are never confined to any dominant party. They are generally composed of a class of men who wait until the two dominant parties issue a platform and then come out and oppose it, and I want to say to you gentlemen of this House that this amendment should be voted down and you members from the rural districts that have no interest in this bill should realize that partisanism prevails in Pittsburg and always will.

Mr. AILMAN. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I had not intended to take any part in this diecussion whatever because I live up among the hills of the rural district, and am not personally concerned over this. I want to say that I am not afraid of the man who thinks, and I have taken some pains to go up and down this State in past years, and urger upon my fellow citizens to think for themselves, and to dare to have the courage of their convictions and express their convictions when the time came, without thinking according to rule, or to orders or to platform, or to what somebody else may have dictated. I had the honor to be nominated by the Democratic party straight. They don't have quite enough votes in Juniata county to elect a man and my Republican neighbors and friends came over and gave me a sufficient number of votes, and a very respectable majority. I boasted seven years ago that I was in this House representing a Republican county, when there was no such a thing as the Keystoners then heard of, and I have had the honor to represent that county ever since, and if you want a Republican to come here and represent that county in the future, as you are entitled to, you will have to quit some of these ironclad things that you are trying to fasten on the people this afternoon, because they will not have it. I support the amendment of the gentleman. I am not concerned at all about what is going to be the result next fall. The American people fortunately are thinking, and if you Republicans don't rise to the occasion and nominate a mighty good man upon a mighty good platform, well you will have to hustle. They will be kept busy. I am satisfied that the Democrats will put up such a man on such a platform that all our Keystone friends will come over and go along with us and have a splendid time, I am not afraid of the amendments on the other side.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House, in reply to my friends on the other side, I would call the attention of the House that this bill applies to but Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Scranton. The reducing of the number of registrars will save the three counties about seventy-five thousand dollars. When, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, the gentleman from Philadelphia on my right said that four hundred thousand voters had the right of representation, he spoke truthfully, and they have representation. As was said by the gentleman from Juniata next year in the Presidential election they will be back to their own party again, that four hundred thousand country voters you speak of will be, in a great majority in the Republican party, and those not in the Republican party will be in the Democratic party and in the stalward parties. They have their representation.

Mr. SPEAKER, and gentlemen of the House, in further reply to my friends, who see fit to prod me about having been at one time out of my party, that is true, and I started out, as the young man from Philadelphia in the rear of the House has said, as an independent. But I want to call the independent's attention to the fact that Durham, Penrose and all the younger fellows with them, they did not come to the Legislature to help them fight. They went out and put a McKinley citizen ticket up and put presidential electors at the top of the ticket and became a party recognized by the law. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of this House, they were aroused in their own minds against existing conditions, won their victory and then sought the home of their party organization and were just as good Republicans when th were fighting under the McKinley Citizens' ticket as wh they got back to their party, the old Republican party, a were in charge of the organization. They did not ask f legislation. They came out like men and fought for it. Th did not cringe and whine; they did not talk about repr sentation of the party. They met the party and broug about victory.

Mr. MATT. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, had not thought of saying anything about this, as it do not concern my county, but when my friends accuse m a Democrat on this floor, because he thinks he is going fight against him, of being a traitor to his party——

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of orde If the gentleman says that I accused a Democrat of ar such thing in my remarks, then he is stating that which not true. I spoke of my mugwump friends on the oth side.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well take The gentleman did not so state.

Mr. MATT. Mr. Speaker, I may be mistaken, but I u derstood the gentleman to state that a few Democra here were endorsed by the mugwump party. Is not tha true? I was endorsed by the Keystone party and hav no apology to offer for it. I come from a county wit seventeen hundred Republican majority and I am her as a Democrat, and I challenge any man in this Hous as to my voting here, whether or not I was a Dem crat. That is all, gentlemen.

Mr. GANS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous que tion.

The motion was seconded by the requisite numbe and agreed to.

The amendments were again read by the Clerk?

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT and Mr. McALEER called for the aye and nays, which were then taken.

Mr. WALNUT asked for a verification of the roll, whic was made, whereupon the vote was announced as fo lows:

Will the House agree to the section?

On the question recurring,

So the question was determined in the negative.

It was agreed to.

The second section was read and agreed to as follows:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I offer the following amendments.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will be read by the Clerk.

The amendments were read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 3, page 8, line 123 by striking out after the word "preceding" the word "presidential" and all of the line after the word "election."

Strike out all of line 124 up to and including the word "therein."

Strike out the word "three" in line 137 and insert in lieu thereof the word "four."

In line 140 after the word "preceding" strike out the word "presidential" and strike out all of the line after the word "election."

In line 141 strike out all of said line up to and including the word "therein."

On the question.

Will the House agree to the amendments?

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, after this decisive vote, which has just been taken, the only possible reason for offering any further amendments is to force home one or two points in regard to the argument of the gentleman from Philadelphia. The gentleman from Philadelphia began his argument by an analysis of what I said, and I now desire to analyze his argument.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. The remarks of the gentleman are not germain to the issue.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well taken.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. I desire to speak on the points raised by the gentleman in his arguments on the amendment.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to be captious, but I press my point of order in that a discussion of the previous amendment is not germain and cannot now be discussed.

The Speaker. The point of order is well taken.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, the amendments now before the House involve exactly the same points and the same principles as the amendment which was previously voted on, and therefore confining myself strictly to the amendment before the House, I desire to refresh the memories of the House upon what was said on the former amendment and draw some morals therefrom. I believe by this time the gentlemen of the House ought to have learned that the best way to get rid of me is to allow me to say what I have to say. I desire to point out that the logical effect of the arguments of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. John R. K. Scott, is the destruction of the Republican party. He recited the way in which he and others of his friends undertook to act independently in a political way, and he pointed out that that political movement put up a presidential ticket, and he said that we ought to do the same. The political methods which the gentleman from Philadelphia has said is the proper one for an independent party to assume is that the party put up a presidential ticket in order to become a real party. I simply want this House to understand that the responsible floor leader on the floor of this House advocates as the proper method of getting independent action in this State the destruction of the Republican party.

Now, Mr. Speaker, let me analyze the remarks of the gentleman from Elk, Mr. Flynn.

Mr. JOHN R. K. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order. That the analysis of the remarks made on the last amendment is not germain to the issue, and the question is the question of the amendment now pending.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well taken. An analysis of the amendments now offered will be perfectly in order.

Mr. S. B. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, the amendments now fore us raise the same question which the former amer ments raised, and I wish to run them home. Let me poi out that the party of the gentleman from Elk, having fail in their proper duty to put a check upon the domina party, failed to be the real minority party, and they n
ask that they shall be given the actual perquisites of t minority party, and that those who took advantage of t failure of that party to do their duty through their in pendent party have actually taken the place of the minori party, and he now asks that that independent party be rul out by legislation.

One more point. It certainly is strange, coming fr
the mouth of the gentleman from Philadelphia, to hear h talk about economy. Mr. Speaker, when money is w spent in the maintenance of the general principles a political rectitude, when money is spent in the purificati of the ballot, you will not hear objection from the re friends of the Commonwealth, but you hear objection fr those who are willing to spend the money of the State up almost everything excepting the perfection of the purity elections and the honest government of the State.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the amendments?

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1263, entitled:

An act, making an appropriation to Temple University of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call the attention of the House to this bill, making an appropriation of $110,000 to the Temple University of Philadelphia. At the outset I do not wish to say anything particularly about Temple University, because there is no one who appreciates the good work done by it more than I do. I particularly appreciate the friendship of the sponsor of this bill, and for that reason it makes me hesitate somewhat in attacking this bill, but I want to say that notwithstanding the good work that Temple University has done, but it opens up a new channel of appropriations by the State, which I think we ought to stop now. We have worthy institutions in this State, such as Grove City, a most worthy institution, and yet it does not receive one penny of State aid, and other institutions in different localities, such as Bucknell, Swarthmore, Lehigh, Lafayette, all good institutions, doing good work the same as Temple University, and yet not one of these institutions receives one penny of State aid. The only institutions you will find in the list of State appropriations are the three State institutions, the University of Pittsburgh, formerly the Western Universtiy of Pennsylvania; the University of Pennsylvania and the State College. I think we should confine ourselves to this channel in the matter of making appropriations to the institutions. There are no free scholarships given, and I do not think that this institution should receive State aid. I would ask this body to limit itself to a very narrow channel in this matter and vote this appropriation down.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I do not want to take up the time of the House, but I want to say this: I know it for an absolute certainty that there is no institution in Eastern Pennsylvania that does as much for the poor man's boy as does the Temple University, and every member of this House can well afford to vote for this appropriation.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. REYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it wise, in view of the size of the House, to go into a lengthy discussion of the merits of this bill, but I intend, if the House will grant me that privilege, to put the matter of the Temple University fairly and squarely before the House. I therefore move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. GANS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1264, entitled:

An act making an appropriation to the Finance Committee of the Organizing Commission of the Twelfth International Congress of Navigation, to help defray the expenses incident to the meeting of said congress to be held in Philadelphia in June, one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGGE.

Mr. HILTON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up at this ime on page 54 of to-day's calendar, bills on final passage ostponed for the present, House Bill No. 901.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on final passage f House Bill No. 901, entitled:

An act declaring the liability of railroad companies for loss or damage y fire providing a remedy therefor and relating to evidence thereof

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HILTON. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, his bill was introduced by me early in the session at the equest of a great many people in the northern section of he State, many of whom had lost a great deal of property y forest fires. In the county of McKean alone the loss as been about a half a million dollars, and in every case he fire was started by the sparks from the railroad engines. Many attempts have been made to collect damages rom the railroad company, but in all cases where any damages were collected, the money spent in doing it was more than the money allowed by the court. It is almost mpossible to collect any damages from the railroad company on acount of the weakness of the law. This bill aims o shift the burden of the proof, and it is the only way that has been discovered that will hold them responsible. Many other States of the Union have this same problem, and in many have met it with a bill that calls for proof, prima facie evidence, as this bill calls for. Fourteen States of the Union to-day have this same act, and I do not think t has as yet worked an injustice to the railroad companies when they were not guilty of causing the fire. I think we could well use this legislation that is used by so many States; the same law that works justice to all concerned. think you will agree with me that in order to get the proper protection from the railroad companies we have to get it through legislation. We give them many rights and privileges, and we should do it because we get great many benefits from them, but I think that we in return deserve the proper protection of our property and lives. I live in a section of the State where a great many little towns are ocated in the forests, and in this season of the year the people have to leave the town and seek places of safety, and when they return to their homes they very often find their homes burned. They never have a cent of insurance because the fire insurance companies will not take the risk for reason of the danger from forest fires. The different States in the Union that have this law are Colorado, Illinois, Kansas, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Iowa, Massachusetts, Minnesota. New Hampshire, North Dakota, Vermont and Kentucky. Last Saturday while at home I drove from Smithport to Bradford. For some distance the highway paralleled the railroad. An engine was traveling along there and they were making no attempt to prevent the sparks from coming from the engine. We need the protection because the railroad company will make no effort to try to stop the sparks coming from the engine. I heard of a case the other day of old man Larson, a farmer, who saved a little money and bought a farm about six months ago, giving a mortgage for about one-half of what it was worth. He cut a few acres of timber with the expectation of selling the timber to pay the mortgage. His property was burned and he lost the value of the wood. I want to ask you what chance old Mr. Larson would have without a dollar in the world to get damages from the railroad company? How could he prove that they caused the fire? Why should he be compelled to do so when we know that ninety per cent. of the forest fires are started by the sparks from the railroad engines, which the railroad companies have started by their own carelessness? Why should we not shift the burden of proof? The fact is that old man Larson's loss was caused by a fire on the right of way of the railroad company. Shift this burden of proof to them and make them prove that they did not cause it instead of making old man Larson prove that they did. As long as this is not an experimental act, but in use in other States of the Union, I cannot see why the State of Pennsylvania is not willing to accept it, and I wish to say that if it becomes a law we will not only save a great deal of property, but also save a great many lives, because a great many lives have been lost in the forest fires. I sincerely hope that every member of the House will vote for this bill.

Mr. JAMES C. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I think in all fairness to the work of the committee a statement should be made to the House as to the Senate bill, bearing the same relationship to this subject, which was defeated. The committee was conscientious and fair to all parties. A number of meetings were held and there were railroad representatives present, and there were others representing those who had property on the lands that were being affected, and there were four men as representatives in that body representing capital of many millions of dollars. They were told by the committee after going over the whole thing very carefully, just what was at issue, and we reported it out and it was referred to a sub-committee, which sub-committee worked very conscientiously and reported back to the main committee with a negative recommendation of 8 to 7, and the vote was sustained by the entire committee, and then it was defeated. The bill was therefore disposed of, but as an act of courtesy, and through the esteem in which the gentleman is held in the committee, who had a similar bill, out of favor to him, that he might please his constituents and that he might stand well at home the committee permitted his bill to go out in order that he would not suffer anything at home, with the understanding that that bill would take its place on the calendar on third reading. Last night it was called up, out of place, and it was defeated, and then put on the postponed calendar. I think in fairness to the committee that has done its work so well that the bill should be defeated.

Mr. MARVIN. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I quite agree with the author of this bill that something should be done, if possible, to prevent forest fires occurring from locomotives. They are entirely too frequent in the dry seasons, and the companies too lax in the performance of their duties towards property owners. As a lawyer, I must say that section two of this act is in my opinion entirely too drastic and would open the door for unscrupulous persons to start fires on railroad lands and allow them to communicate to adjoining properties and hold the railroad for damage. This bill, gentlemen, goes too far, for section two specifies that without any grounds whatever, if it be shown that fire originated on railroad property it shall be prima facia evidence that it was caused by operating such railroad. This, gentlemen, is against all rules of equity and while my sympathy is naturally with the farmer, having been brought up on the farm—I feel that as a lawyer I can see where the provisions of this proposed act will be greatly abused and great injustice done. If section two is eliminated I shall vote for the bill, if not, I must cast my vote against this measure.

Mr. HILTON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to state, in answer to Mr. Johnson, of Philadelphia, that there was no agreement with me in that committee that I was not to bring this bill before the House or call it up if I could get it up. Senator Baldwin introduced the same kind of a bill in the Senate. The chairman of the Railroad committee didn't have any fear of my bill going out and he told me that the Senate was for it if the Senate bill was defeated. And I made a motion that my bill be reported out, but there was no anderstanding that I would not call it up. In answer to Mr. Marvin I wish to state that while the fire that originates upon railroad lands is not in itself prima facia evidence that the fire started in that way, but they ought to have a chance to prove if they can while the railroad company can have a chance to prove that they were not responsible for the fire and that it was caused in some other way. When you come to consider that ninety per cent. of the forest fires are started from sparks from the locomotives on railroads, and this is well known and accepted, yet it is just as easy for the railroads to prove that they did not start that fire and it leaves it to the other party to prove it—the party who has suffered a loss.

Mr. AILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I don't look at this bill from the standpoint of a lawyer, but I look at it from the standpoint of an interested citizen and I want to say that I am interested in the forestry hills in Pennsylvania, anything that I may have said on the question to the contrary notwithstanding. The secret of the restoring and the preserving of our forest is to keep out the fires. You don't hesitate to vote for appropriations for the keeping up of an expensive forestry department, but they are practically powerless unless you give them some assistance in protection against fires in these forests. They are causing untold damage every year, and in order to keep these fires out you must have some pretty strigent laws. This bill is not too drastic upon the railroad companies; it only holds them responsible for the fires that occur along their lines. This law will work no hardship on the railroad companies. There is only a short time in the spring and in the fall when there is danger form any serious fire. The railroad companies have men patrolling their tracks and all that these people would have to do is to have somebody while patrolling their tracks look after the dangers from fire and extinguish any small fires that are started by sparks from their locomotives. Let them employ men whose duty it is to look after and prevent forest fires along the railroad. I was surprised to note how many of my friends voted against this proposition on the other bill, who reside in Allegheny. If it is worth while to go to the large expense of planting trees and to preserve forests I say it is worth while to do something to keep out these fires and unless you do something to keep out the fires all this is useless, and if you keep the fires out why you certainly will make a great saving, and you ought to be willing to require of these people who get so much from the State of Pennsylvania that they take a little care during the few weeks of each year to avoid and prevent this devastation. We will need more than this before many years; we will have to employ special police to patrol the forests of the State during the fire season and it will pay us to do it. I should suggest that you swallow your legal technicalities and vote for this bill.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill because I think it is one of the most vicious, far-reaching and unfair bills that has been presented to this house for a long time. As chairmon of the sub-committee I am in a position to know that we gave this bill a fair hearing, and we came to the conclusion, as Mr. Johnson has said, to report this bill with a negative recommendation. The sponsor of this bill was not satisfied, notwithstanding that we gave him and his friends another hearing which met with the same fate.

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker, I have been a member of that committee, and the member from McKean county, as Mr. Johnson has explained it, had some understanding about it. I cannot see what the sub-committee was for. They simply made the report, and they could not make any report except what we ourselves could endorse. It was the feeling of the committee that the bill be reported out—that is, his bill, not the Senate bill that was defeated. This bill has been referred to as a vicious bill. I would like to know what the use is of spending money to preserve our forests if we are going to allow them to be burned down every spring and every fall. I have traveled over this State for the eighth year and as I have been going over this State I have met with forest fires, and I have often wondered what could be done to stop them. I can say myself from what I know and have seen that it is the railroad locomotive that starts forest fires, and I know that when you bring suit against the railroad company for the damage that is done they, who employ their attorneys by the year, can fight any suit that is brought and they can postpone a case and continue with the fight by carrying it to higher courts for four or five years, indefinitely, whi the poor fellow who has been burnt out cannot afford go along in that way and carry the cases through the court This bill is only intended to make the railroad compa liable for the preservation of our forests, and why shou they not be made liable? I will warrant that if this bi goes through there will be less forest fires in the future a the railroad companies will then make some effort to pr tect our forests.

Mr. SCHOFIELD. Mr. Speaker, I don't see that t members of this House have anything to consider in rega to anything that was done in committee; what we are i terested in and what we are here to consider is whether has or has not any merit. Coming, as I do, from a countr district, I know that the forest fires are prevalent ever spring until the verdure is sufficiently advanced, when th dryness of the leaves does not have to be contended wit any every fall before the fall of snows come, when we a threatened with this danger. In nine cases out of ten thes fires are caused by the sparks that are thrown out b railroad locomotives. If you will take the daily papers pu lished in the State of Pennsylvania and read the news o those papers during the last five days you will find recorde there the fact that fire has swept over the northwestern en of this State and devastated thousands of acres of land. I almost every instance this devastation has been caused b sparks from locomotives, and when those who suffer fro these fires and devastations seek to recover damages th burden of proof is upon them and it is almost impossible t recover damages from the railroad companies. They wi prove that they have spark arresters in their engines an they will prove that they could not have set fire to th forests. There is nothing vicious in this bill; the bill simply provides that when a fire has occurred on the right o way of a railroad company, or along their tracks adjacen to property, the railroad should be responsible for it. Th second section, to which the genteman from Pike, Mr. Marvin, has objected, says that when the fire has occurred adjacent to a railroad it shall be prima facia evidence that th railroad company has set fire to it. I come from a countr district and I wish to inform the gentleman from Philadelphia that I have voted for every bill that didn't adversel affect my ditsrict, and, as you have no forests in Philadelphia, and your district is not affected, and while your districts do not suffer from it, you may still vote in favor o protection to any district which does not suffer from it and I ask you to vote for this bill.

Mr. HILTON. Mr. Speaker, Senator Baldwin introduce the same bill in the Senate and it passed the Senate by a large majority, but when it went to the committee, as ha already been intimated, they threw it out. This act is a exact duplicate of the Ohio State law, which has been a law for the last fifteen years, and when before the Railroad Committee Mr. Stone, from Bradford, made that statement before three lawyers who were there representing three railroads—the Lehigh Valley, the Erie and the Pennsylvania—and they never denied the fact, and they never submitted any evidence to show where it worked an injustice to the railroad company.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NAYS—3.

Baldwin, G
Benson
Kelly, M.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted n the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. ABBOTT asked unanimous consent to call up from page 8 of to-day's calendar House Bill No. 1263, entitled:

An act making an appropriation to Temple University of Philadelphia Pennsylvania

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Abbott.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer the following amendment to this bill.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendment.

The Clerk read the amendment as follows:

Amend section 1, by adding "Provided that twenty-five complete sholarships in a complete course of study of not less than three years' duration shall be awarded to the State of Pennsylvania each year during any period for which an appropriation shall be made to the Temple University of Pennsylvania. The said scholarships to be distributed by lot among the membership of the House of Representatives at the biennial session for the two years following any such appropriation"

On the question,

Will the House give unanimous consent to the consideration of this amendment at this time?

The Chair hears objection.

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker, I move that we go into committee of the whole for the purpose of special amendment to this bill.

Mr. PERRY. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole?

It was agreed to.

Whereupon,

The House resolved itself into Committee of the Whole.

Mr. CONNER in the Chair on said bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The House having gone into Committee of the Whole, the Clerk will read the amendment.

The amendment was again read by the Clerk as follows:

Amend section 1 by adding "Provided that twenty-five complete scholarships in a complete course of study of not less than three years duration shall be awarded to the State of Pennsylvania each year during any period for which an appropriation shall be made to the Temple University of Pennsylvania. The said scholarships to be distributed by lot among the membership of the House of Representatives at the biennial session for the two years following any such appropriation."

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

Mr. ABBOTT. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House. In offering this amendment I desire to make some explanation why I have receded from the position I took originally. I am not opposed to Temple Uniersity itself, I was simply opposed to this sort of a channel of an appropriation without the State receiving some return for the money which was given out. I have been informed since I have spoken this evening of the peculiar stress of this institution. I realize that in Philadelphia—having been born and raised within three or four squares of the Temple University—the Temple is doing good work. My objection was not aimed at the Temple when I made the statements I did. Now they are willing to give to the State a return for the appropriation, the same as the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburg and the State College are doing. They will give the State scholarships to the value of eight thousand dollars a year—a scholarship covering a period of three years each, and some of the courses covering four years with twenty-five scholarships every year to make some return to the State, which will be some thing for the amount of money which has been appropriated by the State for this Institution. It will be in line with the other institutions who give us back some returns for the appropriations we give them. I think, therefore, that it would be fair to help this institution, and if it is a help to the citizens of the State by putting through this appropriation bill, with the amendment I have offered, I will ask the members of the House to support it.

JAMES J. CAMBELL. Mr. Speaker, I don't intend to say much upon this subject, but I thought it would be well to have some explanation. They tried to give the scholarships to the Senate, but when they found out that they could not do that, that they could not give that power to them alone and carry the bill, he has turned about and now he is giving that power to the House and he is now granting that to the members of this House.

Mr. GEORGE A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I can give you fifty meritorious schools in Western Pennsylvania. In Pittsburg and other communities who do just as good work as the Temple University, and who are charging less for it. They are schools patronized by the poor boys of the Western end of this State; I will enumerate some of them, among them, Allegheny College, Westminster, Grove City, Geneva College, Beaver College and others. Start this ball rolling with this idea of giving State money to strictly private schools and you are doing something that is little short of outrageous. Where is it ever going to stop? How can we vote to give money to the Temple University of Philadelphia and not extend the same help and support to one hundred other schools that are just as worthy.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia is simply ridiculous. What good would this scholarship be to the western part of the State? What poor father in the Western part of the State could afford to send his children to school in Philadelphia even if the scholarship were free there would be a board in Philadelphia to pay, there would be railroad expenses and other expense and it would be simply prohibitive. I am opposed to this amendment and opposed to this bill.

Mr. WILLIAM WARD, JR. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Abbott.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ABBOTT. Yes, sir.

Mr. WILLIAM WARD, JR. I would ask the gentleman from Philadelphia how these scholarships are to be awarded?

Mr. ABBOTT. By lot among the members of this House, and for the years during which the appropriation is made the members of the Legislature shall be awarded by lot twenty-five scholarships. In answering the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Ward, and also the gentleman from Philadelphia, I would state that I have never asked for any scholarship. I know of no one who wants a scholarship at the Temple or anywhere else, and if one was to come to me I would refuse to take it. I am offering this amendment simply in fairness to the University, as the matter has been put up to me.

Mr. KEELEY. I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Abbott.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ABBOTT. Yes, sir.

Mr. KEELEY. Mr. Chairman I would like to ask the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Abbott, in the absence of my colleague, who is the sponsor for this bill, if he knows that this amendment is to be put into this bill?

Mr. ABBOTT. He does, and agrees to it the same as Mr. Savidge, who has a knowledge of it and agrees to it as a member who represents the Temple University here.

Mr. MARTIN. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ABBOTT. Yes, sir.

Mr. MARTIN. I would like to ask the gentleman what claim does this Temple University have on the State of Pennsylvania, or why they should be granted an appropriation of one hundred and ten thousand dollars?

Mr. ABBOTT. The answer I would give to that, Mr. Chairman, is the fact that they are educating the youth of the State of Pennsylvania. My main objection to the bill originally was that they were not entitled to State aid because they were giving nothing in return to the State directly. By this amendment they are giving a return to the State in the way of scholarships.

Mr. MARTIN. What tutition fee does the Temple University charge?

Mr. ABBOTT. $150 a term; $450 for three years.

Mr. MARTIN. A thorough and fairly good education can be obtained that will cost students not one-third what it will cost to attend the Temple Universiy, some have been asking aid from the State which has been refused and they certainly have the same claim as the Temple University or any other university or educational institution in the State of Pennsylvania.

On the question.

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Mr. CLARENCY moved that the committee of the whole house now rise and report back to the House.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. ALLEN in the Chair.

Mr. CONNER. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Conner.

Mr. CONNER. As chairman of the committee of the whole house I beg leave to report back to the House, House Bill 1263, with the information that the committee of the whole has adopted the amendment.

The SPEAKER. On the question.

Will the House agree to the report of the committee of the whole.

It was agreed to.

On the question.

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading a amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, To be prepared for final passage.

This bill provides that money of that kind on certificates, more than six years old. one year after this bill becomes a law, shall be turned over to the State Treasurer. If the parties turn up, they can bring an action against the State Treasurer to recover this money. This bill has been submitted to the Banking Department and approved by them and I trust the bill will be supported by the members of this House.

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1285, as follows:

A joint resolution requesting the United States Senators to support the resolution now pending in Congress for the abrogation of the treaty between the United States and Russia

Whereas In the treaties and conventions now existing between the United States of America and the government of Russia it is provided that the inhabitants of each country shall mutually have the liberty to enter sojourn and reside in the respective territories of each other and to that effect shall enjoy the same security and protection as natives of the country wherein their reside and

Whereas The government of Russia has singled out a certain class of citizens and inhabitants of the United States and forbidden them from sojourning or residing in or entering into the territory or dominion of Russia on account of their religious faith and

Whereas The severest penalties are visited upon those who in any manner violate this edict of the Russian government so that an American citizen of the prescribed faith with an American passport who should cross the borders of the Russian territory would under the penal code of Russia be subjected to the most cruel punishment without the privileges of the trial by jury and

Whereas It is the fundamental principle of this government that the rights of its citizens shall not be impaired at home or abroad because of religious belief that this government concludes its treaties for the equal protection of all classes of its citizens without regard to religious belief that the government of Russia has violated the treaty between the United States of America and Russia concluded at St. Petersburg December eighteenth one thousand eight hundred and thirty-two by construing that part of Article one thereof which says that the inhabitants of the respective State shall be at liberty to sojourn and reside in all parts whatsoever of said territories in order to attend their affairs and they shall enjoy to that effect the same security and protection as natives of the country wherein they reside on condition of their submitting to the laws and ordinances there prevailing and particularly to the regulations in force concerning commerce to mean that American citizens of Jewish faith are subject in Russia to the same restrictions that Russia imposes upon Russian inhabitans of Jewish faith by declining to permit American citizens of Jewish faith to sojourn and reside in Russia in order to attend to their affairs and enjoy to that effect the same security and protection as non-Jewish native Russians and by refusing to honor American passports issued to American citizens of Jewish faith and

Whereas Such distinctions would be abhorrent to all the people who believe in the right of men to worship according to the dictates of conscience therefore

Section 1 Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania (the Senate concurring) That we hereby petition our Senators and Congressmen from this State to request the President of the United States to abrogate the treaty between the government of Russia and the United Sates of America and that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to our Senators at Washington urging them to support the rèsolution now pending in the National House of Representatives for the abrogation of said treaty

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1291, as follows:

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 720, entitled:

An act to establish a municipal court for the county of Philadelphia and prescribing its powers and duties regulating the procedure therein and providing for the expenses thereof and providing for the appointment and compensation of a clerk deputy clerk assistant clerks and tipstaves and the payment of such compensation by said county

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides for a municipal court in the city of Philadelphia, and the character of the bill is modelled on that of the Allegheny County bill recently passed here and signed by the Governor. I believe it is recognized both in Philadelphia and Allegheny County that our present condition of Court business is a travesty on justice. We have in Philadelphia to-day some five Common Pleas Courts, and they are absolutely unable to conduct the business that is brought before them. There are now about fifteen thousand cases at issue before these courts, and if there were no new suits brought before them for the next four years, working all of the time, they could not catch up in the work. There is no reason why a man to whom certain moneys rightly belong should be kept out of that money for a period of from three to six years. In view of the fact that we have raised our Common Pleas judges' salaries to the degree we have, we ought not to permit them to occupy their time with the consideration of cases involving small sums of money, and this bill has therefore been introduced to remedy that defect and to provide a court, a cheaper court, for the conducting of that business and to relieve the Common Pleas Court of the present congested condition. In practically every other large city, such as Chicago, New York, Washington, Boston and Buffalo, they have recognized the necessity for the establishment of courts similar to this. In Philadelphia the Bar Association has endorsed a court of this description, and it has been a very live question before the Bar Association for the past ten years. The credit men in Philadelphia are very anxious for it, and particularly the business men feel the necessity for its establishment, and realize that it would be a great advantage to the business credit of the community. I therefore, gentlemen, ask you to pass this bill.

The question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was not agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 746, entitled:

An act to promote the safety of foot passengers on the highways of this Commonwealth and the convenience of the general public in the use of the said highways by empowering the supervisors or commissioners of any township in any county in this Commonwealth to compel by order resolution or ordinance a street railway company operating a double track line of railway within any village of this Commonwealth having one track on each side of a public road street turnpike or other public highway within the said village to remove its tracks within the said villages form the side of the said public road street turnpike or other public highway to the middle of the same and authorizing the court of common pleas of the proper county in case the supervisors or commissioners of any township shall refuse to adopt such order resolution or ordinance upon the petition of twenty tax-payers resident in the said village then and in such case to order the removal of the said tracks to the middle of the said public road street turnpike or other public highway upon petition made to the said court by twenty tax-payers resident in the said village and imposing a penalty for refusal or neglect to comply with the said order resolution or ordinance of the said supervisors or commissioners of the said township or the order of the said court of common pleas

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

NAYS—1.

Campbell, J.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted the affirmative, the question was determined in the ffirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate r concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideraon of House Bill No. 758, entitled:

A joint resolution proposing amendment to the Constitution granting to the people the right of initiative and referendum

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. M. CLYDE KELLY. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, I want to take this opportunity of stating my appreciation of the courteous, kindly and gentlemanly treatment which has been given me by the chairman of the Judiciary General Committee in connection with this measure. It has been so unusual in my experience that it is appreciated all the more highly, and while I have expressed plainly my opinions regarding the action of other committees on the floor of the House, I feel that in all fairness I should speak with equal plainness on this occasion. The uniform fairness and courtesy of the Hon. Mr. Shreve, of Erie, chairman of the committee having this measure under consideration and the kindness with which he permitted a public hearing to be addressed by United States Senators Clapp and Owen, will remain as a bright spot in my legislative experience and will be remembered long after less pleasant experiences have been forgotten.

On behalf of this measure before us, the initiative and referendum as a State-wide right, I simply want to give what appears to my mind the one supreme argument for it and the one argument against it.

It merely means putting the government into the hands of the people and making this a government not only for the people, but by the people. It gives the people the right to eject the legislation they desire when it is refused by the legislative bodies, and also the right to nullify laws which they do not desire which have been enacted by the Legislature. It means that the voters will be encouraged to use deliberate and careful judgment, it will mean publicity in politics, doing away with the secret conclaves and dark rooms and star chamber sessions in the transaction of public business. It will end the unholy alliance of corrupt politics and big business and will banish the grafter and briber, since their devious arts will be useless when the people have the deciding voice in all legislation. Therefore the one argument which outweighs all others is the fact that the initiative and referendum mean the rule of the people as a whole, direct legislation by those who form the supreme power in this government.

There is also a very strong argument against the passage of this measure. All objections to it are simply gingerly touches at distant point of contact. They do not touch the heart of the issue.

To give this argument I would like to be able to paint a picture, and I wish I could make it so clear and so vivid and truthful that it could be seen in all the highways and byways of Pennsylvania. It is a picture of the poisonous power that pollutes the politics of this Commonwealth. It is a power, shrewd and cunning, but traitorous to its very heart. It is a power that has betrayed and will betray its most faithful servitors if there is anything to be gained from it. And yet it is a power into whose treacherous keeping some members of this House have given their honor and their self-respect.

I listened with great interest yesterday to the clever address of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. John R. K. Scott, concerning parties in this great State. I yield to no man in my admiration and respect for the principles, ideals and great men of the Republican party. I yield to no man in my utter hatred and contempt for the masquerading combination that has stolen a noble and revered name and under that mask has plied its vicious trade in the name and under the auspices of a stolen government. It has cracked the whip over aspirants for office, has debauched and intimidated voters, has manipulated the ballot and robbed the ballot box.

When even such measures did not avail, it has taken the official fresh from the people, and through its hellish arts has tempted and bribed the weak, has coaxed and flattered the ambitious and deceived and deluded the unsuspecting. Through such putrid measures this power has controlled legislatures, has huckstered legislation, it has invaded and warped every part of the legislative machinery of this State, has betrayed a commonwealth until hope itself is almost gone.

Gentlemen, that picture would show a power that has robbed a people, brought contempt upon the great Republican party and piled difficulty and disgrace upon the State of Pennsylvania. It is to-day the foe of good government and good legislation and the friend of bad government and bad legislation.

That is the one and only argument against this legislation, just as it has been the deciding argument against other good measures during this session. Need I express it more definitely? The power to which I refer is simply that combination known as the political machine of Pennsylvania. The power represented there is the deadliest danger in this old commonwealth to-day.

If this House desires to maintain its dignity before the world, if it has any desire to escape the charge of cringing submission to the worst and most vicious elements of power, it must grapple with and forever end the accursed tyranny by which a people is outraged, a citizenship despoiled.

I never expect to see a Utopia of ideal conditions, a millennium of dream kind in Pennsylvania, but I do believe it is possible to have a state where justice reigns, a government which will be loved and venerated by good citizens and which must be respected and feared by the evil and criminal. That such a condition is possible, I dare mantain, and I will stake all I have or hope to have upon its certain coming.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, I have stated this case fairly and squarely and without fear or favor. I contend that looking past all quibbles and pretexts, under these masks and subterfuges, the one argument against this measure is the political organization of this State, which needs the plunder and the jobs and the unholy power to perpetuate itself. The one argument for it is that it will assure a government for the people, of the people and by the people. And so I invoke your assistance as representatives of the people, and back of you I invoke a much mightier power, public sentiment and public conscience, to end the tyrannical domination under which an entire citizenship groans to-day. Then, and then only, shall we have a State where justice divides the right from the wrong so clearly that all may see and judge.

Then, and then only, shall Pennsylvania be worthy of her glorious history of the past; then, and then only, shall Pennsylvanians be true men.

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I want to call the attention of the members of this House to the fact that last week, when the Pittsburg plan was voted on containing the initiative and referendum features, it passed this House by practically a unanimous vote. I believe all the members of this House from Pittsburg, and a large part from Philadelphia—in fact, all the members voting except fifteen voted for the Pittsburg plan containing the initiative and referendum features. Now, on this vote I am curious to see how many of these gentlemen will swallow their vote on that occasion and take it all back. If the initiative and referendum are good for the city of Pittsburg, why are they not good for the State of Pennsylvania. I am certain that the people of this State, the people of Pittsburg especially and of the counties in the western end of the State, will look with a great deal of interest on the position taken on this proposed amendment by the gentlemen representing the various counties from the western end of the State. What was good last week, gentlemen, ought to be good this week.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

A division was called for, 50 members voting in the affirmative and 59 in the negative, and the question was determined in the negative and the bill falls.

Mr. M. CLYDE KELLEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the ayes and nays be called.

Mr. G. A. BALDWIN. I second the call.

The SPEAKER. The question has already been decided, the gentleman is out of order.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 771, entitled:

An act to amend section first of the Act of Assembly approved the twenty-eighth day of March one thousand nine hundred and seven entitled "An Act authorizing and empowering county controllers in counties containing a population of from three hundred thousand to one million to designate and appoint a solicitor and fixing his term of appointment and salary" so as to make it apply to counties containing a population of not less than eight hundred thousand nor more than one million four hundred thousand

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Speaker, a similar bill having passe the House and Senate, I move that this bill be droppe from the calendar.

Mr. RICHARDS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

And said bill having been read at length the third tim considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yea and nays were taken and were as follows viz:

(Fees for constable

For serving notice of rendition of judgment and return to magistrate fifty cents and mileage

For serving writ of possession and delivering actual possession for constable and assistant three dollars and mileage

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, this bill (No. 784) is a vicious bill and will work a hardship upon the laboring classes. And I want to ask you to vote it down because I think the burdens of the working man are hard enough without loading anything more on his shoulders. My people do not want it, and I do not think any fair-minded man will want to put this hardship on the man who has not a competency and must live from hand to mouth on his daily wage.

Mr. WILLIAM WARD, JR. Mr. Speaker, as I understand the bill offered by Mr. McGowan it is a very meritorious measure. It works no hardship on the tenant. It gives the landlord the right by due process of law to obtain possession of his property without distressing the tenant. It takes no household goods, and does not disturb him or his wife or children, but gives the landlord his absolute right—the right to obtain possession of the property when the rent is not paid. I think this measure should receive the support of this House.

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen, the tenant can be evicted when he owes fifteen days' rent. Now, the great industrial centres do not all pay bi-monthly, and the leases are drawn up generally as yearly leases, particularly in the cities, and this bill will work a hardship on the tenant. I think the landlord, as the eviction law now stands, has security enough. Just fancy this: If a tenant and you lose your job or income that you could be evicted in two weeks. That is enough to drive the average man with a loving family insane; that fear of losing your job. Those who are not living from hand to mouth cannot perhaps quite understand this, but I assure you that I understand it, and there are millions of others that understand it. This fear during the entire winter of losing your job, being laid off, being put on short time, and in two weeks' time the landlord if he sees fit, can throw you and your family out. Now, I know all landlords will not do this. This law will not be of any benefit to the humane landlord, but it will give the unscrupulous landlord a lever which no good man wants another man to use on the unfortunate, and I hope, men, that you will, in all justice to my class, vote this down. We do not want it. We have enough to bear without making our burdens any harder to bear. Vote it down.

Mr. McGOWAN. Mr. Speaker, I want to take but one or two minutes of your time. I had not intended to say a word on this bill, realizing and believing that it had merit in it sufficient to become a law without any remarks. However, I may say that the bill now before us for consideration in brief simplifies the method of procedure for possession of property in case of non-payment of rent. I understand we are now governed by an old act of 1772, and a later act of 1863. Both of these acts are pointed out to me as being inadequate to the requirements of the present day. The bill does not repeal any existing law, but simply, as the title of this bill indicates, provides an additional remedy for obtaining possession of property in case of non-payment of rent. The bill provides that when rent is due or overdue for fifteen days a hearing will take place before a magistrate and so forth. Discretion can be exercised by the landlord for more than fifteen days if he chooses, and in fifteen days the landlord can take advantage of this act if he so desires.

I understand, Mr. Speaker, in New York there is only ten days allowed between the landlord and tenant, and the law works out splendidly. When interest upon a mortgage is due it is generally paid and no days of grace looked for. A house rented is a home, so to speak, loaned away to the tenant, and he should feel under the same obligation as anyone in the case of paying interest on the mortgage or give up peaceably possession of the property, which is the only aim of this bill.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I believe the bill is a fair one and would encourage the more prompt payment of just debts between man and man, and would encourage thrift in business, and should become a law. I ask you, gentlemen of the House, to kindly support this measure. I think the bill is very fair, and I myself would be perfectly willing to be governed by its provisions.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Speaker, I wish to interrogate the gentleman from Berks, Mr. McGowan.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Berks permit himself to be interrogated

Mr. McGOWAN. Yes, sir; Mr. Speaker.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. Speaker, now supposing that a nufacturing corporation or the mine operators would n the houses that the men live in. In case there was a rike, could they put them out in fifteen days?

Mr. McGOWAN. Mr. Speaker, that would be a matter be- een the landlord and the tenant, and would have to be ovided for according to circumstances. That would be a atter for their consideration.

Mr. MARVIN. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, have in New York a law which is much more drastic than is, and we believe that over there that it works to great vantage. The law which I practice under in that State ys that if the landlord serves a three-day notice upon the nant to get out or pay the rent and the tenant does not in ree days pay his rent then he can forcibly eject him by ing to the court. If the tenant, however, does pay his nt in these three days, then the landlord may serve him, he wishes to remove him, with a thirty-day notice and re- ire him to move, or the landlord could accept the rent and ntinue the tenant. That law has been in force for many ars and works to good advantage to the landlord and the nant. This bill now before us entitled the tenant to fif- en days' notice, much more than is allowed in that State, d I think this bill is a most meritorious one and should be ssed, both as a protection to the landlord and for the pro- ction of the tenant.

Mr. JAMES DUNN. Mr. Speaker, it seems to me at this bill, if enacted into a law, will become very oppres- ve, especially on the mining class. I am somewhat con- rsant with the conditions in the mining regions and I lease number of properties myself. Therefore, I am in a position know, and believe that if this bill becomes a law it will ork a great hardship on the miners. Sometimes in the sum- er work is very scarce for two or three months at a time, nd frequently they are not able to pay their rent, and if ey are leasing a house from a harsh landlord he will take dvantage of this act. When work starts up in the fall they enerally can make up the rent. Now, Mr. Speaker and entlemen of the House, I hope that this bill will be voted own.

Mr. SASSAMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that further con- ideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. SHOEMAKER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was not agreed to.

The roll having been called, the Speaker announced that he same being unsatisfactory, owing to the confusion, an- ther roll call would be had on the bill.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 821, entitled:

An act regulating the collection of taxes in the several boroughs and townships of this Commonwealth and providing a compensation for the collector

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. DERSHEM. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Union, Mr. Dershem.

Mr. DERSHEM. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman who is the sponsor of this bill.

Mr. SHREVE. Mr. Speaker, I will answer for the gentleman.

Mr. DERSHEM. I should like to know if this is a raise on the commission of the tax collectors over what they now receive in boroughs?

Mr. SHREVE. No, sir. A very plain and simple statement on the first page of the bill provides that tax collectors shall receive five per cent. up to the first day of November, then there shall be added a penalty of five per cent., which does not increase the emoluments of the tax collector, who would still receive but the five per cent.

Mr. DERSHEM. What does he receive at the present time in boroughs?

Mr. SHREVE. The same.

Mr. DERSHEM. I think not.

Mr. SHREVE. The extra five per cent. goes to the borough and not to the tax collector.

Mr. DERSHEM. I don't think the tax collectors receive this much in most boroughs nor in the townships. It is only two per cent. That is what I think it is, and this is an increase of compensation to five per cent. It seems to me that increasing the compensation of the tax collectors, or rather doubling it, is uncalled for. We don't have any trouble in our section.

Mr. SHREVE. This bill was introduced by Mr. Wilcox at the request of the County Commissioners of Erie County. The matter was taken up at the county convention, and the Commissioners were in favor of it. The Solicitor for Erie County informs me that that is the consensus of opinion of these Commissioners and that this is a fair bill.

Mr. RIDER. Mr. Speaker, I believe we voted down a bill something like this the other day. I do know that the tax collectors do not receive that amount of money at the present time. I think it would be hardly fair to ask the taxpayers to increase this compensation to that amount, and I believe the law is good enough as it is. We have no trouble in getting tax collectors now and they are only too glad to be re-elected on the present basis. Mr. Speaker, I believe this bill ought to be voted down.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 728, entitled:

> To amend the twenty-sixth section of an act approved the tenth day of June Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three entitled "An Act to regulate the nomination and election of public officers requiring certain expenses incident thereto to be paid by the several counties and punishing certain offenses in regard to such elections" by further regulating the giving of assistance to electors when voting

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Walnut.

Mr. WALNUT. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides for an amendment of the assistance clause. By reason of any disability of the voter, who desires assistance in the preparation of his ballot, he may secure assistance. This has been interpreted to mean that the voter is the sole judge of his own disability, and is entitled to have assistance in the preparation of his ballot if he so declares. The election officer may decide for him, and if he does an affidavit for assistance will not be necessary. Mr. Speaker, in examining the laws of the different States that offer assistance to the voter in the preparation of his ballot, a provision in every State of this Union requires an affidavit as to the physical disability of the voter before he is entitled to receive assistance. The fundamental provision of our election laws, as it appears in our Constitution, provides that all elections of the citizens of the Commonwealth shall be by ballot or such other method as may be prescribed by law, provided that the secrecy in voting is preserved. In following out this principle we have placed upon our books a number of provisions with which we are all familiar, one of which provides for election booths, with curtains, into which a voter may go and mark his ballot without interruption. Another provision is that he shall deposit the ballot in a ballot box himself; and another provision is that if the election officer shall do this he shall commit a misdemeanor. All these provisions are in line with the proposition which lies at the basis of our method of voting, that the ballot shall be secret. There is one method by which this secrecy of the ballot can be evaded, and that appears in this present assistance clause. I believe I need only refer to the figures which have been collected in Philadelphia to show the manner in which this assistance clause is made use of in Philadelphia. In the Philadelphia election of 1909 there were about 250,000 votes cast, among those votes there were 50,000 assisted voters. In some divisions the number of voters who were assisted ran over 50 per cent. of all the votes cast, and this in defiance of the provisions of the Constitution requiring secrecy in the ballot. That principle, Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, is one which we have adopted without any idea of the experience that might result. For the last one hundred and fifty years we have been conducting popular elections in this country, and the one fundamental principle that we have adhered to in every State in the United States is that each voter shall be permitted to go into a booth and mark his ballot without any one to see how he marks his ballot, and that he shall be required to cast his ballot without any one seeing how he has marked it. With this assistance provision that now exists in our election laws we have practically nullified not only the provision in our Constitution, but all the safe-guards that we have placed around the men in the way of how he shall vote and by these provisions in our election laws this has been nullified. It was recognized in 1906 when this Legislature passed a number of progressive election laws, notably the Uniform Primaries Act, that it was necessary to have the voter make an affidavit as to his disability. And the election commission appointed by this House recommends in its second report to this body that this provision of the primary law be embodied in our election law. I therefore will ask you to enact it into a law.

Mr. HECHT. Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to prolong the session of this House by discussion, but I want to briefly say that I am against this bill, and will give several reasons why I think the bill should not be enacted into a law. This amendment to the section of the Act of 1893, which act was in itself a protection and in accordance with the principle which our friend from Philadelphia stated should prevail, but this act now presented is certainly defective in its present form and should not become a law on our statute books for this reason, "that anybody who shall ask for assistance shall be suffering from some physical disability," the loss of both hands or disease or some serious physical defect. According to this section they shall take an oath and make an affidavit, and in that affidavit they shall state the specific disease or crippled condition of the individual, and if shall be signed by the person who has this allaged disability. The specific disease must be declared, and it goes further and says "any voter who for the purpose of securing assistance in the preparation of his ballot who shall falsely make oath or declare that he is physically disabled, if he is not physically disabled," this man (according to this act) "shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished by a fine of one thousand dollars or imprisonment for one year." It happens to be within the knowledge of every man in this House that men may go to an officer in a voting booth, or when they go to the ballot box will ask for assistance, and they would in many cases not be able to put in an affidavit in regard to any specific disease, and if he takes an affidavit in regard to being afflicted with some disease, which is not a fact, he is liable to suffer. We should certainly not put a law of this kind on the statute books, and I hope you will not vote upon it in its present shape.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

So the question was determined in the negative and the bill was not agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 729, entitled:

To enable the electors to express at the November election of the year Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and eleven their preference for or against the election of United States Senator by direct vote of the electors

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. JOHN R. JONES. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Schuylkill, Mr. John R. Jones.

Mr. JOHN R. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I don't want to take much of the time of the House this evening in discussing this question, but I don't care to have this House vote under a misapprehension. Therefore, if you will indulge me for a few moments I will endeavor to explain to you the purpose of this bill. There is no question which so vitally affects the mechanism of our National Government as does the proposed change in the method of the election of the United States Senators. Upon this great question many great men differ, for it is a question, as Sir Rodger DeCoverley says, on which something may be said on both sides of it. There is no principle involved in this bill that is unfair to any one or to any party; it is just and fair to all parties concerned. It is this, the masses being represented in Pennsylvania by the Legislature, and it is a question of the sovereignty of the people, and that it is their right when the Constitution of the United States is proposed to be amended that that question be submitted to the people. When the Constitutional Convention of 1787 was in session there was a proposition submitted by Mr. Wilson, of Pennsylvania, and from that proposition a method of popular election proposed in 1826, and a resolution to that effect was introduced into the National Congress and for eighty-five years this question has been debated pro and con by the American people. At the last session of the Congress of the United States it passed the lower House; while in the Senate it was defeated by a vote of 54 to 32. On the 13th day of April this year, at the extra session, by a vote of 296 to 16, the House passed a resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States favoring a direct vote for United States Senators. That very proposition is now pending in the United States Senate.

Now, to the point and purport of my bill; it is this: when you propose to amend the Constitution of Pennsylvania, under that Constitution and by resolution you introduced and passed in this House this evening a bill, the sponsor of which was Mr. Woodward, of Allegheny. When you propose an amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania you submit it to the people. You passed a resolution in this House, introduced at this session by Mr. Breitinger, of Philadelphia, to amend the Constitution of Pennsylvania, and it ends ultimately with the people passing upon it in the future, and you will allow the people to pass upon that question in regard to whether or not the Constitution of Pennsylvania should be amended. When you amend the Constitution of the United States there is no line in that Constitution on the part of the people to pass upon the question whether or not a proposed amendment shall be or shall not be adopted. The Constitution is amended in two ways: first, by a resolution on a two-thirds vote of both houses, and, second, by a ratification of the legislatures of two-thirds of the States. These amendments when proposed for passage must be ratified by two-thirds of the States, and thus become a part of the fundamental law. All I ask you to do with this bill is that you submit to the people of Pennsylvania the question whether or not they are in favor of this proposition. I cannot go into the argument here to-night whether or not United States Senators should be elected by direct vote of the people, but I do argue for the inherent right of the people of Pennsylvania to say yes or no. Do you mean to say that you will refuse to allow the people of this State to pass upon this question? You are here to-day as their representatives. Do you mean to say that the voters who chose you are not competent enough, or honest enough, politically, or intelligent enough, or fair-minded enough, to pass on that question? You stultify yourselves if you assume this position. I make an appeal to you as a Republican; I make an appeal to you as members of the Republican party. I don't wish you to refuse to the Republican party any particular leader or leaders of that party, but I want you to pass upon this question upon your fundamental belief in the fundamental purposes of that party. This party of ours was born and is the offspring of a great moral issue. Our first great leader was a martyr for the rights of those who were down-trodden and slaves; our second great martyr was James A. Garfield, a second great Republican leader, and the third martyr was William McKinley, and our last President, who can be truly called the great champion of the people of this generation, Theodore Roosevelt, was always a Republican who always stood and stands for popular rights, and are you going to say that the people of your district shall not have something to say on this question? If you believe in that change, give your people a chance to vote on it, to which they are entitled, and you cannot deny that fact unless you stultify yourselves.

A word to the other side of this House: You can defeat this measure which to me, personally, means nothing. I have fought for this measure from the 25th day of January of this year fairly and squarely, and I know that as this goes before this House to-night that it has very little chance of becoming a law, and I wish to assure you that I am not deceived upon that proposition, but I wish to state my firm and honest conviction on this question, and I want to add that I am under no obligation to any one except the people who sent me here from the Fourth District of Schuylkill County. In conclusion, all that I have to say is that before you pass upon this bill that you know what the bill is. Don't be deceived into the belief that you are obligated to one or the other proposition. I ask you to pass favorably on this question, because in it is to be recognized the fundamental rights of the people.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I have refrained from speaking on two questions in this House; one was, the referendum, and the other has been the Constitutional amendment to give the right of selection of United States Senators directly to the people and to have the people express their own choice for Senators of the United States. The reason I have refrained to speak upon these questions has been because I didn't like to take the time of the House, feeling confident as to the result of the vote without discussion. But I feel that after allowing the other side to take so much of the time of this House to express their views that it is not unfair to express the other side of the question, which is not in accord with the views that have been submitted. It has been constantly stated, or the impression has been made, or has been tried to be given, that our legislative bodies—our national bodies, as well as our States bodies—should and must always submit to the people the question of an amendment to the Constitution whenever an amendment is offered. In other words, the gentleman who has just been on the floor has tried to impress the House with the fact that it is your absolute duty to submit these questions to the people, and has implied that it is the only right to have. You are sent here for the purpose of doing that. I will not take time to read a part of he Constitution, but let me call the attention of the House to the fact that the builders of the greatest government that has ever been established upon God's footstool decides that the Legislative bodies, both of the States and of the United States, should first express their views on a question of this kind. You know, and we all know, that before an amendment to the Constitution of the United States can be submitted to the people certain action must first be taken by those who represent them in these bodies. We all know that the Constitution says that before this question is submitted to the people the first expression must be taken from the legislative body. When any member on the floor of this House undertakes to give the impression to this body that it is our duty to submit this question to the people and that there is nothing else for us to decide, then I want to know what the father's of our government thought when they shaped into our Constitution that very proposition, that before a question of this character be submitted to the people it must be first be taken up in a legislative body. And what does a question of this character mean? It means the problem of government. It is one of the vital questions of the government as to the laws that we shall have; it is vital, and I desire to add that the question of constitutional government is more vital that the statutory laws. I am frank to confess to you that I don't pretend to be even a weak master of constitutional law, but I have some opinions on the subject, and I cannot help but insist on my opinions; one of my opinions is that you are here to act according to your own judgment in accordance with what you think and thus vote according to your own honest judgment on a question of this character, irrespective of what you think some people might favor. My friends let me ask you what per cent. of the people even in this grandest government that the world has ever known, what per cent. of the people can vote upon this question with the intelligence and with the knowledge necessary to take up and consider great problems of government? You tell me how the masses to-day, listening to speakers, can tell a demagogue from the man who hands out the real goods. Who makes the most noise on all questions—the man who is a demagogue. Or the man who has the goods? You know and I know that if you want to capture an audience, not only in this country of ours, but in any other country, all you have to do is to set up a cry for the people. A demagogue will try to make them believe that they are fighting for their rights. The masses of the people do not study the questions of government at all, nor do I believe that ten per cent. of the citizens of the State of Pennsylvania would endeavor to express sound opinions on the problems of government. The problem of government is a study that goes back to the dark ages. I want to say to you that the fathers who framed that law were met with the proposition almost immediately upon the organization of our government, but the men who actually framed the Constitution of our national government considered the question of checks and balances, and any man who will read history will arrive at this conclusion, that if there is a government or if you will maintain the important problems and question of government or endeavor to maintain it, you will find that pure democracy, that is, the voice of the people on all important public problems and questions, has proven a failure, and may be so understood by reading the pages of history. Why did our fathers put some checks and balances into that proposition? Because they know that the people would not always keenly and clearly discriminate as between the man who is a demagogue and the man who has studied the proposition. I don't say that any gentleman who takes a different view from myself on any question is a demagogue, or that he is dishonest, or that any one who differs with me is dishonest, but there are demagogues in this broad land and there always will be demagogues and they have a personal motive in their actions; they leave the people to think that they are taking care of their interest or at least endeavor to do so. Mr. Speaker, I hope that the members of this House will not vote in favor of this question. Why should it be your idea that it is your duty to submit this question to the people? It is your duty to weigh the question and the consequences, and then decide what is the wise thing to do. It is your duty to let it be known that according to the judgment of this House, after careful consideration, you have concluded that the presen form of government as builded by our fathers cannot b idly laid aside because a few people desire it. Let me ca your attention to the fact that a few people desire it. Le me call your attention to the fact that almost all of u look lightly upon the Chinaman. We think he is an inferio citizen, not worthy of consideration, as compared to th average American citizen, and I wish to say that that government has lived for thousands of years, and my friends, want to call your attention to the fact that when a government has lived intact as long as China has and has survived these generations and these ages from three to fou thousand years, that we have something to learn abou government, and that it is up to the statesman to look u and carefully investigate the matter of government. It i a deep question, and it is a most difficult one to answer Therefore, without taking any more of your time, and want to say that we might continue this argument for hours when you vote upon this question, vote upon your own judgment whether or not it is the right thing to do. You wan to be serious, and you want to think seriously on this question. You don't want to be deceived with the idea that i is the people's right alone to express their opinions upon these questions. It is your right just as legally and just as rightfully. I don't think that this proposition is an improvement. I don't think that it will be for the better, if it should be adopted, or will tend to perpetuate this government of ours, but will bring us back to early Roman and Grecian conditions where they had their pure democracy which absolutely failed.

Mr. KERN. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I believe that the impression that the gentleman from Delaware is trying to make on this House is best illustrated by his remark that the person who makes the most noise accomplishes the least.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. I would like to call the gentleman's attention to the fact that I did not make that statement, and I would like him to correct it.

Mr. KERN. Mr. Speaker, it seems by what has been said that the gentlemen of this House are afraid to submit it to the people. As we are here as their representatives we should try to represent them. That is the provision of a representative government, and we should never be afraid to submit it to the people. He has quoted China. What have they accomplished in the way of progress? They have accomplished nothing, simply because the people have no right to vote to control the government. I think that his statement with regard to China is an erroneous one.

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I would like to object to some of the assertions made by the gentleman from Delaware. I understand the word "representative" to mean to represent your constitutients, and if it does not mean that I must have been laboring all these years under a wrong impression. I thought it was my duty to represent the people who sent me here, but the gentleman from Delaware seems to have a different idea. He goes on to say that the masses are not qualified to judge intelligently on this great issue, and therefore, we should use our own judgment and judge for them. With all due respect to this body, because I am a part of it, I have watched the proceedings here since January 3d, and I have been connected with the masses, as the gentleman put it, all my life in the most active manner, and I know some fellows down in the ditch that can give this crowd pointers in the science of government. I have listened to the statesmanship here, and at times it has been enough to make me cry.

When we think we possess a monopoly of the intelligence on economics and on the science of government, I hold that we have another think coming to us. He spoke of China. I have been working on a question pertaining to the Far East for four years now. I started that work and promised to have it finished in the course of a year's time, and it will take me still another year or two before the work is finished. I know something about the Far East. When the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Baldwin, spoke of the Far East he interested me very much. He speaks of China. Yes, China is one of the oldest nations on earth and is one of the most poverty-stricken and miserable on earth, due to the fact that they have what he thinks we should have—centralized government, government in the hands of a few. The poor Chinamen never had anything worse in his government. We have had a bitter experience throughout the history of the world with centralized government. Our fore-hers strugled for years to obtain a democracy, and blood s shed in the cause, and yet here on the floor of the use of Representatives we hear a speech against it, the tleman saying that you can get anyone o follow you en you appeal to the masses. Who constitutes the Com- nwealth but the masses? He spoke about the glorious umonwealth. I am sorry that I cannot say the same of s Commonwealth and this nation with its six hundred usand millionaires and one moneyed man worth a billion dollars and its paupers. Up to 1873 you had no profes- nal tramps as you have today, when the conditions are h that they are called prosperous times, and yet you have unemplpoyed army of three millions of men. At the sent time you have working in our factories four millions women, and two millions of them are married women, and millions are children. Do you call that a great nation? o not. Whistle if you want to, but you will squirm some y, I will tell you that. I have listened to your foolish- s as long as I can stand it. I am surprised that you nnot read the "handwriting on the wall." I know the ple are sick of it. What have you done for the masses speak about? What have you done for the people since u have been here? The only thing you have done was to se the salaries of overpaid officials and create offiecs, bur- n the workers who work and who have to pay for it, and u know it. And now you want to slap us in the face by ing that we do not possess the intelligence to know what want. I admit that we have blundered in he past, but have been led astray and have been led into dark alleys, t the people are waking up, and when you speak about the ence of government I can take you to an assembly where u will hear more sound economics in an hour than I have ard here since I have been here. The other day you ssed a motion calling for the reading of the Bible in the blic schools.

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. J. C. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, I arise to a point of der.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point.

Mr. J. C. JOHNSON. Mr. Speaker, we are considering e question of House Bill No. 729, and the gentleman's lk does not relate to it at all, and I would suggest that be instructed to keep to the matter of the question be- re the House.

Mr. MAURER. If it is getting too warm for you you n take a walk. What I was going to recommend was at we should teach our children economics and the science government so that when they grow up to be big men ey will know it. What do you teach them in the schools, -fairy tales—so when they grow to be men and women ey do not know, and then we have got to make them all er again. I think that is correct, I know it is. That is od logic. Now, gentlemen, I hope you will stand by this ntleman's bill and the people will take care of it. They ill all be interested in this great question. When the untry wants soldiers they call upon the people. Those ho declare war, the Congressmen, do not go. Those who ant the war and prosper by it, do not go, and then you ave to go to the people whom you say are not intelligent ough to vote on these matters. I am willing to trust my ture and the destiny of my family and my country in the ands of the people and I want to tell you that I prefer at to a monarch. If I had my way about it, I would abol- h the Senate entirely. When I first came here the first ing that was told me was that this over here was the rave yard, and that it was where they killed everything. ne of the older members told me that. We represent the eople and are elected by the people, and are supposd to now what they want. The poor people have no voice in e United States now. Your United States Senate has uthfully been referred to as the "Millionaires' Club." If ey are not millionaires, they represent millionaires, and ou know it. This bill simply asks that the people shall ave the right to say who their United States Senator ill be.

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, I just desire to ask the gen- eman who have just taken his seat that when he made the emark that the statesmanship he has heard here made im feel like crying, whether or not his own statesmanship as ever made him feel like laughing.

Mr. Ailman: Mr. Speaker, I will speak for just a few oments and I would not do this if it were not that my ood friend from Delaware, Mr. Baldwin, is always logical and correct and always reaches a correct conclusion when his premises are right, but if he ever started off on a wrong tack in his life he certainly did when he started off a few moments ago. He would have this intelligent House here to-night believe that the good government has been handed down from the governors to the people, and he would try to impress and enforce that upon you by citations from history. He has read the other side of the page of history from the one I read.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I would like to remind the gentleman that I think I said it was the best on "God's footstool." I did not say that it was perfect.

Mr. AILMAN. I was not talking about this government, I was talking about all governments. He gave the impression that this government was handed down to the people. On the contrary, it has been the people forcing the governors and compelling them from time to time to yield to them, and liberty has gained the ascendency. Take the government of England, and it has developed from an absolute monarchy to a limited monarchy, but where did these concessions come from? They did not come from the governors, but were concessions of government forced by the people. He cited the Greeks and Romans. Just as long as the people were getting concessions from the government, Greece and Rome flourished, but just as soon as the government secured strength enough to overthrow that, you know what the result was. I think he was exceedingly unfortunate, in his reference to China. You all know that the lower forms of life have great vitality. I had occasion yesterday to consult Dr. Shaffer about the scab on potatoes, and he said that it would not be safe to plant potatoes in that ground until it had been tested because those pesky scabs had such vitality. Highly organized individuals like the gentleman from Delaware and the rest of us die out in a very short time. That is true in nature, it is true in society and it is true in government. If you are going to have any progress in the future, and I know we are going to have lots of it, because I am not a pessimist but spell optimist with a big "O," and believe that we are going to have lots of progress, it will have to come, as I have said, from the soil, where most good things come from.

Mr. R. J. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House, I just want to state a little incident that occurred in the Legislature of the State of Kentucky.

They were amending the Constitution, and the argument was going on similar to this argument here to-night. The argument was all one way. They were saying something that they thought would please their constituents. They wanted to be popular with them. They were making spread eagle speeches about the people, about trusting the people always in the question of government. They said that they were going to do this way and that way and that the people were going to do everything in regard to the amendment to the Constitution. Finally somebody said to an old gentleman who had been a member for years, that they would like him to say something with reference to this amendment, and after considerable persuasion he did so. He said: "Gentlemen, there has been a great deal said here about trusting the people, but I have read a little about sacred history, and it appears to me that upon one occasion there was a man brought up for trial, and under the Roman law he had committed no crime. The Romans said, 'We cannot see that he has done any crime,' and they handed him over to the people, and ever since reading that story I have had some doubt about trusting matters to the intelligence of the people." I know that it makes a man popular to go before the people and say that the American people are worthy of any trust. The people will believe him and will be pleased with him, but if on the other hand he states that they should be careful in submitting questions to the people, he will go home and the people will not be tickled.

My friend from Juniata, Mr. Ailman, says that I began with the wrong premises. I began by stating to you that the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Pennsylvania provides that before a question of that kind goes to the people, and the people are the Constitution, the people themselves made this Constitution, and they themselves say that this question shall be submitted to us first, and that they shall listen to what occurs and takes place in this legislative body among the legislators who are intended to be selected from among the most intelligent men of our community; that is what I said. I want to call your attention to the fact that if you once submit that proposition to us that you cannot submit it to us again for five years. Who said that? Not the Legislature, but the people, they said this question shall not be continually before the people. You might not submit this question to us more than once in five years. That was my premises and where can you find a premise any more liberal than that, and I believe that my good friend who always speaks his mind liberally did not intend to give the impression that I had started with the wrong premise. The gentleman misunderstood my statement. I want to tell you that the members who rise and support that measure which is really the initiative and referendum have always been hurling it out among the people that the Legislature is afraid to trust the people, that that bunch at Harrisburg will not trust them. It tickles them to think that you so often think about them. I have already told you that you cannot submit this question to us more than once in every five years and I trust therefore that you will seriously consider this question irrespective of what the masses that we represent think about it and I would like to ask the gentleman from Juniata if he does not agree with me.

Mr. MAGEE. Mr. Speaker, there were gathered together at one time an assembly of men who declared that all men were created free and equal. They made that declaration good. They fought their way to freedom and to the formation of a magnificent government. They gave to us a government that has stood from their time to ours, and has extended its dominion over the face of the earth. They gave us the government of the people, a government of States gathered upon the Atlantic coast, and it has grown under their wise provisions and has grown to the Pacific Ocean and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. They gave us a government of the people through representatives elected to our Congress directly by the people and gave to that body of representatives of the States the power to elect the Senators from the different States to the Senate of the United States. There was a reason for this division.

The one was for a popular representation of the people and the other was for the protection of the Commonwealths themselves, and this was for the reason that there would not be two directly popular representatives bodies It was inteended by this means to keep within the Constitution and within our system of government one body that directly represented the state, and they had provided that the people should be representd in the lower house of Congress, that could declare war and levy taxes. Those men made the government, and it has lasted and kept alive, and, I think, prospered more than any other people in the world, in spite of the statements of my friend, Mr. Maurer.

We are to-day the most prosperous, and my people, some of them, were glad to come to this country. My mother's people were glad to come to this country. Part of my people marched in the ranks of the men who fought to make this country free, and some of them marched in the ranks of those who fought to keep it free. I believe that the men who were the foundation of this government understood it better than most of the men I have heard on the floor of this House, with all due respect to them. There was a reason for the establishment of the courts and a reason for the establishment of these two bodies and there was a reason for the establishment of the Senate as it is conducted today. They say that the Senate is a body of rich men and that it takes money to be elected to the Senate. But I want to say here to-night that it is easier to buy some elections and conventions than to buy the Legislature. The Legislatures are selected from among the people. They must be passed upon by the parties that nominate them. They must submit themselves to the whole people for election, and I say to you that the people have given to us in a representative capacity this proposition, and as far as I am concerned I believe in standing by what has been the wisdom of a century and a half in the administration of affairs of this great country of ours.

Mr. ALTER. Mr. Speaker, there is just one thought which suggested itself to me which has not in any way been touched upon, and it seems to me that it ought to be taken into consideration, and that is the submitting of this question for a straw vote of the people at the election next fall. It would bring on a great deal of discussion, judging from what we have heard to-night. Now, Mr. Speaker, next fall we have the first trial of our new system of election, provided for in our recent amendment to the Constitution. In this amendment we provided that in each odd numbere year there shall be held a municipal election at which th people elect their municipal officers. It is provided tha none but municipal officers shall be elected—that is, towr ship, borough, State and county officers. In order that th people may perform this important duty of choosing thei local officers and their county officers and judges at thei election, where their attention is not taken up by district i terest of State and national affairs, is it an opportune tim at this first municipal election under this new system, whe we are electing our township and borough and city officer our first school directors under the new School Code, ou county judges and officers, is it right at this election, whe this is being tried for the first time, that the attention c the people should be taken up by such a matter as is unde discussion here? I simply suggest that question for th consideration of the House.

Mr. KNIGHT. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate th gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Alter.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr Alter permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ALTER. I will.

Mr. KNIGHT. Has this resolution passed this Hous prior to this session?

Mr. ALTER. Mr. Speaker, I would say that the bill w are now voting upon is not a resolution calling for a amendment to the Constitution. It is a bill, an act, provid ing that at the fall election of 1911 a straw vote on thi matter will be taken. That is all it could be, and it woul have no binding force. The voter shall be called upon t vote as to whether they prefer election of United State Senators by a direct vote of the people. It is a bill, an it does not have to pass two sessions.

Mr. HOBBS. Mr. Speaker, I was listening to the re marks of our friend from Delaware, Mr. Baldwin, and h mentioned something about a demagogue. I have a littl dictionary here, and I looked up the meaning of the wor My friend stated, as I understand it, that the people wer led by the influence of the demagogue. The dictionar gives the meaning of a demagogue as "a leader of the peo ple, a factious orator." What is a factious orator? He i one given to factions and prone to clamor against publi measures." Gentlemen of the House, "clamor against public measures." That is just what the opposition to this bil are doing. This is a public measure upon which and i which the people of this nation are evry much interested I want to say to you that the people of this Commonwealt and of this United States are not led by factious orators They are a thinking people, and I feel they ought to have a opportunity of expressing their opinions on this matter.

The quesion recurring,

Will the House agreee to the bill on third reading?
